MONEY KING RESTS EASILY TWO BULLETS IN HIS BO

WASHINGTON, D. C. Library of Congress

His Would-Be Assassin Is Native American and Was to Have Become Head of Department of French in Methodist University at Dallas Next Fall—Wanted Banker to Stop Shipping Munitions of War to Europe.

ENTERED HOUSE ARMED WITH PISTOLS AND DYNAMITE DETERMINED TO OBTAIN RESULTS

Frank Holt, Following His Arrest, Issues Statement Saying He Meant No Harm to Mr. Morgan, But Went to See Him About Ending the War—Overran Butler at the Door, Met Banker and His Wife on Stairs.

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 3.—J. P. Morgan, head of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Company, was shot twice today at his country home, near here, by Frank Holt, a native American, a former student and instructor at Cornell University, who was to have become the head of the department of French in the Southwestern Methodist University at Dallas, Texas, next fall.

Both shots took effect in the region of the hip. A statement issued by specialists at his bedside tonight stated that there were no unfavorable symptoms and that Mr. Morgan was resting easily.

Holt was over-powered by Morgan and Henry Fiske, the butler in the Morgan household, who grappled with him in the hallway.

Intended No Harm.

He was locked up in jail here and from his cell issued a written statement saying that he had intended no harm to Mr. Morgan, but had come to Glen Cove to persuade the banker to stop the shipment abroad of munitions of war from this country. He went into the Morgan home, he said, with a pistol in his hand a stick of dynamite in his pocket intending to remain there till Mr. Morgan "did something."

Another loaded pistol was found in Holt's pocket and more dynamite was in a suit case which he had taken to the Morgan house. In addition there were numerous newspaper clippings in the suit case, all bearing on the European war.

An authoritative statement of the shooting, obtained here late today after many conflicting reports had been circulated, says:

"Holt called at the Morgan home at 9 o'clock while Mr. and Mrs. Morgan were at breakfast. Fiske, the butler, answered Holt's ring at the door. Holt handed the butler his card, telling him to inform Mr. Morgan it was from a friend. As the butler started back through the hallway, Holt slipped a pistol from his pocket and pressed it against the butler's stomach.

"See this gun," he said, "I have another one."

The butler, pressed by the muzzle of the weapon, backed into the hallway, Holt following. As the front door closed behind them, the butler realized the determination of the assassin and spoke in a loud voice, so that Mr. Morgan might hear, "Mr. Morgan is in the library."

Holt was not diverted by this, but continued to press the butler backward down the hallway toward the dining room. As they neared the dining room door, the butler spoke again.

"Up stairs, Mr. Morgan, up stairs!" he shouted.

Alarmed by the shout, Mr. Morgan and his wife left the dining room by another door, entered a rear hallway and went upstairs. They found nothing amiss there and started back using the front stairway.

Unwittingly they walked almost into the assassin's arms. Mrs. Morgan saw him first, screamed and drew back.

Holt turned and fired twice before Mr. Morgan could seize him. Fiske, the butler, no longer menaced by the pistol, grabbed the assassin's right hand.

Mr. Morgan, with two bullet wounds in his body, threw himself on his assailant and the three men went down in a struggling heap on the hallway floor.

Ambassador Spring-Rice Present.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, British ambassador to the United States, an overnight guest at the Morgan home, was with Mr. and Mrs. Morgan at the breakfast table when Holt entered the house.

The struggle on the door was short. The pistol was torn from Holt's fingers and he was beaten by the butler and other servants, who came running at the sound of the shots, until he offered no further resistence. Then the Glen Cove police and a physician were summoned and Holt was placed in one of the Morgan automobiles and hurried at 40 miles an hour to the jail here.

Mr. Morgan, calmly and collectedly, feeling, he said, that he had been shot, but experiencing no sensation of weakness, walked up the stairs and went to the telephone.

He called up the doctor and afterwards his office in New York city and told the story of the shootin, asserting that he did not regard his wounds as serious. Then he went to his bed and lay down, awaiting the doctor.

While the doctor was hurrying to the seaside from Glen Cove, Mr. Morgan asked that the telephone be brought to him. Personally he obtained long distance connection with Utica, N. Y., and through the exchange with his mother. He told her that she would hear reports that he had been shot, but that she was not to worry.

Holt was locked in a cell in the jail here. To the questions of the local police he at first made no reply. For more than an hour he declined to give his name or say anything about himself. Finally he became talkative and told Justice of the Peace William E. Luyster that he had come to see Mr. Morgan about ending the European war, and that Mr. Morgan had not given him a chance to say anything.

"I fired to scare him," Holt said. "They tell me I hit him. I hope he is not badly hurt."

Holt Makes Statement.

Soon Holt decided that he would write what he had to make public on the matter. He then prepared a statement addressed to Justice Luyster and intended for the newspapers. In this statement he repeated to great extent what he had told to Mr. Luyster verbally.

The extent and nature of Mr. Morgan's injuries were not defined until nearly 4 o'clock in the afternoon when specialists summoned from New York had completed their examination. In the meantime numerous conflicting reports were circulated as to the gravity of his wounds. One report said a bullet had struck Mr. Morgan in the abdomen.

A line of deputy sheriffs was stretched around the Morgan estate and all callers were excluded. Attendant physicians and surgeons kept in telephone touch with the Morgan office in New York.

Late today Holt was arraigned before Justice Luyster on a charge of assault with intent at malicious killing. He was brought from his cell into the court house with a white bandage around his head through which showed a dark red stain above a cut on the forehead. He appeared to have weakened by the loss of blood and tottered as he stood before the justice.

"You are charged," said Justice Luyster, "with assault with intent at malicious killing. How do you wish to plead?"

Holt swayed forward so far that it appeared he would fall. He threw out his arm and it circled the neck of a county detective. Another detective sprang to Holt's side and between them they supported him during the rest of the proceedings.

"How do you plead?" asked the justice.

Objects to Wording.

"Take out all that about the malicious killing," Holt replied. 'Oughtn't to be there."

Justice Luyster informed the prisoner that the wording of the charge was according to the legal code.

"Do you want a preliminary examination?" the justice asked.

"I don't know what you mean," Holt replied, "but I do want to object to that part that tells about malicious killing. That isn't right."

The justice explained the meaning of his question and again asked how he pleaded. Finally Holt said he pleaded not guilty. He appeared undecided whether he wanted a preliminary examination. Assistant District Attorney Weeks stepped forward while Holt appeared to be making up his mind and told the court he would like to ask for a postponement of all further proceedings until next Wednesday, July 7. This was granted, Holt being held without bail in the meantime.

The exact location of the spots where the bullets went home when Mr. Morgan was shot, the gravity of his wounds and the seriousness of his condition, whether sufficient to cause concern or otherwise, were points which

Arrested With Five Others on Conspiracy Charge.

OBJECTS TO TREATMENT

Says Officers Show Disrespect to Himself and Famliy.

El Paso, Texas, July 3.—Victoriano Huerta, one-time dictator of Mexico, was in jail here tonight in company with five other men arrested with him today on fresh charges of conspiracy to violate the neutrality of the United States. Six other men, arrested earlier in the week on similar charges, were at liberty on bonds, but the whereabouts of one, General Pascual Orosco, was a source of anxiety to Federal officials.

Orozco eluded six guards at his local residence and disappeared early in the day. He is supposed to have climbed through a back window, dodged into the shrubbery, then made his way to an automobile. Reports early tonight had him at various points on both sides of the border, ready to lead armed Huerta followers against the Villa garrison at Juarez. Federal officials pointed out that they really had no information that Orozco would not appear in court here July 12, when his case is called for arraignment. Their chagrin at his disappearance, nevertheless, was patent.

General Huerta's incarceration was caused by inability to furnish $15,000 bail in addition to the bonds of like amount under which he was released after his first arrest. R. E. Crawford, assistant Federal attorney, failed in an attempt to have Huerta's bonds set at $100,000.

Others Behind Bars.

Lack of bail of $15,000 tonight kept behind the bars also Gen. Ignacio Bravo and Jose Delguado—taken with Huerta—and Gen. Eduardo Carus, J. B. Rather, Huerta's interpreter, and Enrique Gorostita, his secretary, arrested earlier in the day. The other alleged cnspirators who were released on bonds, earlier in the week, are Ike Alderete, Frank Alderete, Jose Zozaya and Marcello Caraveo.

Today's proceedings were not all to Huerta's liking, and he unburdened himself in a speech in the court of Commissioner Oliver. He told the commissioner that had circumstances been different, he would have shot one of the deputy marshals today. The general also sent this telegram to Chief Justice White, of the Supreme Court:

"I have the honor to inform you on the following affairs:

"That the representatives of the judicial department of the government in this city have, without just reason, molested me and my family here. I am already under arrest here under certain charges and have furnished bond with the local authorities. Now I have been re-arrested.

"I respectfully ask an order from your court that your representative here be instructed to tell me of the duties I am to erform and the conduct I must pursue in order that henceforth they may leave me and my family unmolested."

Huerta reiterated and added to this protest when he appeared before Commissioner Oliver. Mr. Crawford had asked that Huerta's bond be fixed at $100,000 when Huerta asked to be heard.

Protests Against Methods Used.

"While I respect the laws of this country," said he, "I must protest against the methods that have been used here since I was arrested. I gave the bond demanded. Then I was guarded like a prisoner who had not given bond."

Huerta's eye flashed as he turned toward Edward Bryant, a deputy marshal, and personally directed to him an accusation of failure to treat Huerta's family with respect.

"Having held high position," continued Huerta, "it is natural that I should have enemies and these are the ones who are making the trouble. I came here to visit my daughter and then go to San Francisco. But now I am a revolutionist; I am a trouble maker; I must be arrested and my home turned into a prison. I cannot eat, cannot sleep and cannot talk without espionage. I am mortified and my family is shamed."

Huerta criticised Bryant for "undue vigilance." "Had I not been placed in the circumstances in which I was," said Huerta, "I would have shot him."

In his speech Huerta did not disclose the cause of this declaration.

Later in conversation Tuerta said that his anger was aroused when Bryant pushed the general's son from the running board of an automobile as they started for the court house. Huerta's voice shook as he added: "That is the first time I have permitted my temper to run away with me."

WAS PRECAUTIONARY STEP.

HOLT SUSPECTED BEFORE HE MADE THE CONFESSION

Suspicious Statements in Letters Received at Washington.

BOMB WROUGHT HAVOC

Valuable Fixtures to Portion of Capitol Were Destroyed.

Washington, July 3.—Investigation of the explosion late last night which wrecked the Senate reception room of the National Capitol was interrupted by the confession in New York of Frank Holt, the man who shot J. P. Morgan at his home in Glen Cove, L. I., this morning, that he also had been responsible for the Washington crime.

Early in the day Washington newspapers received a letter signed "R. Pearse," in which the writer stated he had planned the Capitol explosion as "the exclamation point to my appeal for peace."

While experts were at work satisfying themselves that an infernal machine had wrecked the Senate room, the police were searching for clues. They could find no trace of the mysterious "R. Pearce," but tonight they sought to trace the movements of Holt, who confessed that he came to Washington yesterday noon and waited last night at the Union station until he heard the bomb explode.

Suspicion Aroused.

Hours before Holt's confession, however, suspicion was aroused here that the assailant of Morgan and the man who sought to wreck the capitol were identical. Holt had given utterance in New York, following his arrest to statements strikingly similar to expressions in the "Pearce" letters.

"If Germany should be able to buy munitions here, we would, of course, positively refuse to sell to her," Holt said after his arrest.

"We would, of course, not sell to the Germans if they could buy here," is a statement in the "Pearce" letters.

Others portions of Holt's interview and the Washington writer's letter also were similar and officials here regarded this as more than a coincidence. An investigation to establish a possible connection between the two crimes was started.

Terric Havoc Wrought.

The havoc wrought by the bomb was terrific. In the reception room telephone booths lined the wall near the window where the bomb was placed behind a telephone switchboard. The framework around this window was of iron and was shatered by the concussion. The telephone boths were blown into splinters and bits of metal were imbeded in the splinters gathered up by the instigators.

Directly in front of the switchboard, no vestige of which could be found save a few pieces of the metal, was a mantle on which stood a large gilt-framed mirror, admired by capitol visitors for years. It was shattered into thousands of pieces and souvenir hunters, seeking these fragments had to be restrained b ythe police while the inquiry into the explosion progressed.

An onyx clock, a fixture of the reception room for twenty years, was ground almost into powder.

Experts declared that the destruction would have been more complete had the reception room been entirely closed, but a window was open and at the opposite end of the room is an an arch leading to the Senate hallway. Notwithstanding this outlet for the force of the explosion, it wrecked a portion of the arched ceiling. The doors leading to the office of the sergeant-at-arms in the Senate were wrecked and doors to the office of the vice president were sprung from their hinges. The floor of the room was sprinkled with bits of glass from the great chandellers. The damage to these will be difficult to repair.

Convinced of Bomb.

Early in the day Elliott Woods, superintendent of the capitol, was convinced that the wreck was the result of a bomb explosion. He summoned Prof. Munroe, who is connected with the Bureau of Mines and Geological Survey. Prof. Munroe looked into the debris and soon satisfied himself that the room had been wrecked by a dynamite bomb and could not have been an accident.

The letter sent to the newspapers was a rambling argument against exports of war munitions to Europe.

"By the way," said the writer at the outset of his argument, "don't blame this on the Germans or on Bryan. I am an old-fashioned American with a conscience, if it is not a sin to have a conscience. * * * Let each nation make her own man-killing machines. Sorry I had to use explosives. (For the last time I trust). It is the export kind and ought to make enough noise to be heard above the voices that clamor for war and blood money. This explosion is the exclamation point for my appeal for peace." He closed his letter with a proposal for a referendum on the question of war exports, which he characterized "a collosal American crime."

Part of the letter was typewritten and part was written with a pen.

MORE THAN 10,000 ATTEND UNVEILING GREENE MEMORIAL

GUILFORD COURTHOUSE

Federal and State Troops and Statesmen Participate in Ceremonies.

Greensboro, N. C., July 3.—More than 10,000 people congregated upon historic Guilford Court House battlefield, today to witness the unveiling of the magnificent memorial monument erected by the Federal government to General Nathaniel Greene, who led the American troops in the battle. The cord that pulled the canvas from about the monument was drawn by Mrs. Anna Clark Meador, of Providence, R. I., a lineal descendent of General Greene.

The unveiling followed a splendid programme of exercises in the pavilion, where addresses were made by governors and prominent officials of every state that had troops in the battle of Guilford Court House. Following the unveiling there was an informal luncheon at the cottage of the president of the Guilford Battle Ground Company, which was followed by a number of short speeches by prominent visitors.

Among the speakers of the day were Hon. George R. Gaither, of Baltimore, Lieutenant-Governor R. B. Burchard, of Rhode Island; Judge Henry C. Conrad, of the Delaware Supreme court; Lieutenant Governor Bethea, of South Carolina; Hon. Arthur B. Clarke, of Virginia; Hon. George Bryan, of Richmond, Va.; Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, of the University of Virginia; President Graham, of the University of North Carolina ,and Senator Overman, of North Carolina.

Prominent features of the day's exercises were the parade and exhibition drills of Federal troops from Fort Caswell, the North Carolina National Guard and local troops; thirteen young women representing the thirteen original states and riding on floats, with escorts; and a chorus of about two hundred voices, which ,assisted by the band, rendered many of the national anthems and State songs. The exercises of the day were in charge of Paul W. Schenk, president of the Guilford Battle Ground Company, a son of Judge David Schenck, the founder of the company.

Special trains were run from the city to the Battle Ground and every train coming into the city last night and today brought hundreds of visitors for the celebration. The battlefield, now a splendid park, was crowded with automobiles and other vehicles.

The programme of exercises of the day began with the march from the president's cottage to the speaker's pavilion. The line of march formed in the following order: Chief Marshal S. Glenn Brown, the adjutant general of North Carolina, Lawrence W. Young; brigadier general commander, B. S. Royster; visiting military officers; United States troops from Fort Caswell; U. S. Coast Artillery; North Carolina troops; thirteen young ladies on floats, sponsors for the original thirteen states, and their escorts; guests of honor and speakers.

The parade moved across the battlefield, presenting a most favorable impression upon the thousands of people that thronged the line of march. The speakers' pavilion would not begin to hold the crowd. About the pavilion was a great throng of people. A large chorus of the city's best singers occupied a platform especially built for it and the music by the chorus and the North Carolina regimental band was a feature. The following programme was observed:

Music—Regimental band.

Invocation, Right Rev. Joseph Blount Cheshire, Bishop of North Carolina.

Address of welcome—Hon. A. M. Scales, of Greensboro.

Music, "The Old North State," chorus and band.

Address "Maryland at Guilford Court House," Hon George D. Gaither, of Baltimore.

Music, "Maryland, My Maryland," chorus and band.

Address "The Delaware Troops, 'The Blue Hen's Chickens' in the Southern Campaign," Judge Henry C. Conrad, of the Supreme Court of Delaware.

Address, "Nathaniel Greene as a Citizen of Georgia," Hon. G. Ogden Person, lieutenant governor of Georgia.

Music, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," chorus and band.

Address, "South Carolina and North Carolina in the Campaign of 1780-81," Lieutenant Governor Bethea, of South Carolina.

Music, "America," chorus and band.

Address, "General Nathaniel Greene," Ex-Lieutenant Governor Roswell B. Burchard, of Rhode Island.

Address of presentation of the Greene Memorial Monument to the Guilford Battle Ground Company, Senator Lee S. Overman, of North Carolina, official

FRANK HOLT AN EXPERT AT MAKING BOMBS HE, CLAIMS

Says He Had Experimented Many Times and Knew What He Was Doing Before He Attempted to Blow Up the National Capitol—Knew When Explosive Would Go Off Almost to the Minute—Took Time.

CONFESSSES ATTEMPT TO WRECK GOVERNMENT BUILDING AND ASSASSINATE MONEY MAGNATE

Former Cornell Student and Instructor Tells Detailed Story of His Two Attempts to Commit Crimes That Would Have Shocked the World—Refused to Talk for an Hour After Being Arrested.

Glen Cove, N. Y., July 3.—Frank Holt, who shot J. P. Morgan today, is the man who set the bomb that exploded in the Capitol at Washington last night In a statement to Justice Luyster and Thomas Tunney, head of the bomb squad of the detective bureau. Holt confessed setting the bomb and described it. As a missile of terror it was said to be unique in the annals of the New York police department.

"I made this bomb," Holt is quoted as having said in his confession, "with three sticks of dynamite, some match heads and a bottle of sulphuric acid."

"Pretty slick," commented Tunney. "I don't see how you did it."

"Well you see," Holt answered, "I had experimented on it before. Not once, you know, but many times. I knew just what I was doing and just how to do it. I really didn't take any chances, for all my observations had been checked up and I knew when the bomb would go off, almost to the minute. I knew how much time I had, so I hung around while the acid was eating its way through the cork. I pulled out my watch and said to myself that it ought to be going pretty soon. And sure enough, it did go pretty soon. Then I hurried away."

At First Denied Charge.

Holt's confession of the Capitol outrage came fast on the heels of his denial to newspaper men, of the same charge.

"Don't you know anything about this?" they asked him.

"No, I don't," he asserted. "I wasn't in Washington at all. I was in New York. I had my breakfast and my luncheon at the Mills Hotel at 36th street and Seventh avenue. So you see I couldn't have been in Washington."

"What were you doing all day?"

"I was walking around the streets in New York, trying to make up my mind to come out here today and do my duty. That was all. I was thinking it over."

When Holt was told that the Mills Hotel clerks had not recalled seeing him there yesterday, he still stuck to his story.

"It does look strange, doesn't it?" he asked, after reading the Washington story for the second time. "It seems that the man who did that thought about like I did, too, doesn't it. It was rather odd that he used almost the same words as I did. I can't explain it."

When the newspaper reporters left, Justice Luyster and Captain Tunney began to question him. They soon obtained the confession, they asserted.

Captain Tunney intimated that so-called third degree methods were employed when Holt denied the charge, and Justice Luyster said:

"We had to go after him first and strong before he would tell us what he knew."

Set Bomb at 4 O'clock.

According to Holt's confession he went to Washington from New York yesterday, arriving there about noon. He went to the Capitol and set the bomb at 4 o'clock. He had timed the blast at midnight. After setting the explosive he strolled about Washington for several hours. In the evening he went to the Union station, a few blocks from the Capitol, and waited for the noise of the explosion.

"I had two or three sticks of dynamite left over that I didn't need on the Washington job," he explained, "so I brought them along to Glen Cove and intended to use them here if I had to."

"Why did you want to blow up the Capitol?" Captain Tunney asked.

"Well," Holt replied, "I thought that was a good way to bring the attention of the American people to the terrible murders being committed in Europe. But what do you want to ask me that for? I explained the whole thing in my letter to the editor of the Washington Times. I understand my letter was printed today. Well, my reasons are all in that letter."

Captain Tunney and Justice Luyster listened with amazement to the recital. They had remarked that no percussion caps were found with the dynamite in his suit case, or with the stick that was found on the lawn of the Morgan estate—apparently the stick that he had carried in his pocket into the Morgan house, and thrown away when the police hurried him to the automobile—and they considered that the dynamite played only a minor role in his plans. Dynamiters almost invariably use a percussion cap, Captain Tunney said.

Gifted With Dynamite Knowledge.

With Holt's assertion that he was familiar with one of the rarest methods of exploding dynamite, a method which Captain Tunney said was used so seldom as to be almost unknown, the impression was strengthened that the prisoner was gifted with knowledge far beyond what he had seen fit to display in earlier questioning. So they went through his pockets again to determine if they had overlooked anything and found a scrap of paper on which were written the names of Junius Spencer (Mr. Morgan's eldest son is named Junius Spencer Morgan), Jane Norton Drew, Francis Tracy and Henry Sturges. Immediately below the name of Junius Spencer was written "Camp Uncers, Hamilton county, New York."

"There is not much doubt in my mind," said Justice Luyster, "that the writing on this paper fitted in with Holt's plans to end the European war. Whether he determined to try his pistol and dynamite methods on the persons whose names are on the paper is something which we have not determined."

Interesting Discovery.

Cambridge, Mass., July 3.—A discovery that Frank W. Holt, who shot J. P. Morgan, bears some resemblance to Eric Muenter, a former Harvard University instructor, who disappeared after the death of his wife by poisoning several years ago, was seriously considered by police officials tonight. Captain Patrick J. Hurley has sent records in the Muenter case to New York and prepared to summon witnesses who knew Muenter to go to New York to view Holt.

Acquaintances of Muenter told the police at the time his wife died that he was born in Germany, that a sister, Bertha C. Muenter, was a public school teacher in Chicago; and that he had come to Harvard from the University of Kansas.

He was said to be about 35 years of age.

His Father-in-Law Talks.

Dallas, Texas, July 3.—Frank Holt, of Dallas, who today shot and wounded J. P. Morgan, was described by his father-in-law, of Sansabaugh, as a man who thought deeply on the European war, and who was "opposed to all war and all strife."

"He never advocated violence, however," said Mr. Sensabaugh. "Frank was born in Wisconsin. He was of German descent and was closely associated with the German element at Cornell, and naturally his sympathies were with Germany."

Mr. Sensabaugh said: "Temporary insanity must have caused the deed.

"Frank has overworked himself this summer, preparing for his duties this fall," he said.

BECKER WOULD NAME MEN WHO GOT THE GRAFT MONEY.

If His Appeal Fails He Will Make Statement Before Execution.

New York, July 3.—On the authority of Charles Becker's counsel, Martin T. Manton, it was said today that if Becker fails in his appeal to the United States Supreme Court he will, before going to the electric chair for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, make a public disclosure of the names of the men with whom he is alleged to have divided $100,000 in graft money collected from gamblers and keepers of illegal resorts during his career as head of the famous Strong Arm police squad.

Albany, N. Y., July 3.—Governor Whitman in a statement today gave Marint T. Manton permission to divulge any of the names which Manton mentioned to him in his appeal for executive clemency for former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker. In the statement the governor said he was "absolutely convinced" that Becker is guilty.

The governor's statement said:

"I noticed in the papers today the following statement purporting to come from Mr. Manton.

"'I a mconvinced that Charles Becker will give to the public the information that he gave to Governor Whitman through me, last Thursday. I wish I could publish the names myself. It ought to be done in the interest of justice, the governor ought to do it.'

"Mr. Manton gave me no information whatever relative to graft or to the murder of Rosenthal.

"He did state to me substantially that he believed Becker could involve in the infamous system of police blackmail of which he as a part, three or four others."

RUSSIA IS FACING DECISIVE DEFEAT

Offers But Little Resistance in Galicia.

BALTIC SEA BATTLE

Berlin Confirms Report That Russians Forced the Mine Layer Albatross to Run Aground—British and Belgian Steamers.

London, July 3.—Although the retreating Russian armies must be considered as yet to be practically intact, the growing impetus of the Austro-German advance is such that a decisive Russian defeat seems inevitable, according to military experts, unless the entente powers initiate a powerful diversion on the Italian or the Western front. Some of the most conservative British newspapers assert this alone can compel Germany to withdraw men from the East, barring, perhaps, a sudden shortage in high explosives, the supply of which will flow to the front more irregularly as the railways become less available.

Neither north of Lemberg, Galicia, nor southeast, do the Russians appear to be trying to offer serious resistance, but unless the approaches to Warsaw are to be left unprotected, military observers say the forces of Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander-in-chief, must soon do some stubborn fighting over the Southern Poland frontier while his extreme left in Galicia must match this in rapid retirement if it is to avoid a critical predicament.

Today's official statements from Vienna and Berlin chronicle nothing but successes for their arms. Again reports are current that the Germans are moving fresh forces west, but they will not bear close analysis.

Friday's battle in the Baltic sea has simmered down to an encounter in what the Germans allege were Swedish territorial waters, between Russian cruisers and a German mine layer. Casualties on the mine layer and the subsequent beaching of that vessel are officially admitted in Berlin.

The British front in Flanders remains remarkably quiet, a fact which may presage some important movement on either side. The French and Germans are at grips again in the Argonne region and elsewhere. The French are now using a deadly gas, according to German claims, and have re-taken a position on the so-called Hilgen ridge in the Vosges.

—The Atlantic Coast Line will run an excursion on the 14th of this month. to Fayetteville, N. C., and return. This is the only one they will run this summer, it is announced, and the rate will be $1.25. Train will leave Wilmington at 7 a .m. and Fayetteville on return at 11 p. m. There will be separate coaches for the white and colored passengers.

Service on Cutter.

As is their custom, the members of the Floating Christian Endeavor Society will meet this afternoon at 2 o'clock on the United StatesS coast cutter Seminole to hold worship. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance.

Spend an Enjoyable Day Tomorrow at Lumina where there are good wholesome diversions for all.

GOVERNMENT LOSES IN READING SUIT

Court Says Corporations Not Leagued Together.

WAS IMPORTANT CASE

Suit Was Brought to Break Up Alleged Illegal Combination in Anthracite Coal—Lehigh and Jersey Central Divorced.

Philadelphia, July 3.—The Federal Court for Eastern Pennsylvania decided today that the Reading group of corporations, the Central Railroad Co., of New Jersey, Lehigh Coal & Navigation Co., and subsidiary and allied companies, are not leagued together in an uulawful combination and therefore do not unduly restrain commerce in the production, sale or transportation of anthracite coal.

The government which brought the suit to dismember the alleged combination and to nullify certain agreements and leases, wins a point in that the court suggested that the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company be divorced from the Jersey Central Railroad.

The court decided there was no violation by the Reading companies of the commodities clause of the Hepburn act which prohibits railroads from transporting any commodity in which it has an interest.

The suit is one of the most important the government has brought to break up what it declares to be an illegal combination in the anthracite coal business. Today's decision refused to declare that the Reading company, a holding concern; the Philadelphia & Reading Company, and the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company were either separately or individually a combination in violation of the anti-trust law.

The court also decided that the railway company and the coal and iron company were legally separate corporation and that the railway did not violate the commodities clause in transporting the anthracite of the Coal & Iron Company.

SUMMER PROGRAM ATLANTIC FLEET

Officers and Crews Will Do Much Drilling.

TORPEDO PRACTICING

Battleship Squadron Will Go Through Rigid Practice of War—A General Overhauling Will Be Given the Vessels.

Washington, July 3.—The Atlantic fleet's summer programme announced today, will keep the battleships and auxiliary squadron and destroyer and submarine flotillas busied with active exercises on a large scale until the fleet war game September 19 to 30, without going to the Panama canal. The battleships will be off the New England coast during July and August and then go South.

There will be occasional mobilization of the fleet but the submarines will be under overhauling and repairs until July 31, then will be engaged in torpedo firing and training of the officers and crews.

The battleship squadron comprising the first, second, third and fourth divisions with the Wyoming as flagship will be engaged from July to August 28 in torpedo practice, landing operations, sub-calibre drills, divisional exercises and fleet maneuvers at various points along the New England coast.

August 29-September 18 on the Southern drill grounds, outside the Virginia Capes, the battleships will have elementary and experimental target practice. They will take on coal and stores at Hampton Roads, overhaul machinery and the officers will have conferences preliminary to war game. The game will occupy September 19 to 30.

Th destroyer flotilla will be occupied in New England waters until August 28 in various tactical exercises. From August 29 to September 18 on the Southern Drill Grounds, the flotilla will have elementar ytarget practice, with rendezvous at Hampton Roads.

The submarine flotilla will be overhauled, until July 31, then have torpedo firing and training of personnel.

The auxiliary squadron until August 28 will practice off the New England coast. From August 29 to September 18 it will be on the Southern Drill Grounds engaged in elementary target practice. It will be with the remainder of the fleet in the war game.

The cruiser squadron will have target practice on the sound as opportunity presents, after patrol duty in various places and target practice at Guantanamo.

MONEY KING RESTS EASILY; TWO BULLETS IN HIS BODY

Junius Spencer Morgan, Mr. Morgan's son, was asked by newspaper men to make a statement on these features. It was pointed out to young Mr. Morgan that more than 12 hours had elapsed since his father had been shot and that rumors of serious import and conflicting nature had been published in the meantime and that the exact location of Mr. Morgan's wounds remained yet a matter that only the physicians and the members of the family knew. One of the rumors, young Mr. Morgan was told, was that Mr. Morgan had been shot in the stomach and the bullet had penetrated the abdomen.

Varying Versions of Bulletins.

"I'll see what the doctors say," he replied. He returned a few minutes later and read the bulletin issued at 6:15 which stated that bullets did not involve any vital organ, and that Mr. Morgan's condition was excellent.

"This is all the doctors care to say at present," Mr. Morgan asserted.

"An earlier bulletin stated Mr. Morgan was shot in the region of the hip," young Mr. Morgan was told. "It might be inferred fro mthat bulletin that the shot entered the abdomen.

"Do the doctors care to set that question at rest?"

Mr .Morgan replied that the doctors did not care to say anything more than the contents of the latest bulletin. No more bulletins, he added, would be issued tonight.

In his written statement addressed to Justice Luyster Holt said he came to Glen Cove to try to force Mr. Morgan to use his influence to have an embargo put on shipments of war munitions and expressed regret that he had caused the Morgan family "this unpleasantness."

His statement reads:

Holt's Statement.

"My motive in coming here was to try to force Mr. Morgan to use his influence with the manufacturers of munitions in the United States and with the millionaires who are financing the war loans to have an embargo put on shipments of war munitions so as to relieve the American people from complicity in the death of thousands of our European brothers.

"If Germany should be able to buy munitions here, we would, of course, positively refuse to sell to her. The reason that the American people have not as yet stopped the shipments, seems to be that we are getting rich out of this traffic; but do we not get enough prosperity out of non-contraband shipments and would it not be better for us to make what money we can without causing the slaughter of thousands of Europeans?"

"I am very sorry that I had to cause the Morgan family this unpleasantness, but I believe if Mr. Morgan would put his shoulder to the wheel he could accomplish what I have endeavored to. Of course I did not want to injure Mr. Morgan, as I wanted him to do the work I could not do. I hope that he will do his share anyhow. We must stop our participation in the killing of Europeans and God will take care of the rest."

When asked who inspired the plot against Mr. Morgan the prisoner denied that any one had done so.

"It came to me from on High," he declared.

Jack Rose to the Front Again

Jack Rose. Charles Becker. Mrs. Charles Becker.

Twelve days before the date set for the execution of Charles Becker, the former New York police lieutenant who was convicted of having been the instigator of the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the New York gambler, Jack Rose, the chief witness against him on his two trials, came to the front again. The day Governor Whitman, of New York, who as district attorney of New York county, had Becker convicted, had given the victim a stay of two weeks, a statement was published in an afternoon newspaper that Rose had sought Mrs. Becker and suggested to her that he could help her husband. Mrs. Becker was quoted as having said Rose sought her for an interview.

On top of that Rose came forth with a denial. He said Mrs. Becker had sought him, and with tears in her eyes had begged him to do something for her husband.

"I won't do anything because he is as guilty as hell," he is said to have answered her.

The man seemed to lack complete comprehension of what had happened. He could not be persuaded for some time that he had wounded Mr. Morgan.

"I did not hurt him," he cried. "I shot to frighten him. I hope he isn't hurt. I shot away from him just so that he might be frightened. You can do as you wish with me. I did my duty; you do yours."

TELLS OF DISTRIBUTION OF EXAMINATION "DOPE"

Ensign Harrison Testifies Before Navy Court of Inquiry.

Annapolis, M. D., July 3.—Ensign H. H. Harrison, one of the defendants before the court of inquiry investigating irregularities in examinations at the naval academy, today explained to the court the wide distribution of advance information on the modern languages examination.

Harrison said he heard that Midshipman Wessell, one of the original defendants recommended for dismissal, had some good information which Harrison thought he had received from an instructor because Wessell had been confined to the hospital for some time. This information was copied by Harrison, and he said, passed on to a large number of the first and second classes. It has beed testified that Wessell had made use o fthe papers that Midshipman James E. Moss claimed to have received from an anonymous source and which the authorities charge were stolen examination papers.

A Question For You

When you trade at home you keep the labor-machinery at work. A big dollar can do just so much work.

Will you have it work in your section, or will you send it North, get it out of your country, and let it work for the other people?

The South's dollar belongs to the South, and the South can keep its dollars if it will not send them to mail order houses. Patronize men in the South, and in this way you keep a Great Working Force at home.

If a few hundred men send away for their goods, they have sent out of reach a Powerful Force for Good. Keep the South's Money in the South. This means all of us should do this.

Be loyal, and the test of loyalty is your patronage of Home Institutions.

Chicago, July 3.—Chicago and Pittsburg broke even in a double header today, the locals taking the first 6 to 5, while they lost the second 2 to 4. The first game contained plenty of hits by both teams, but Chicago's were more valuable because they followed bases on balls. Poor base running and poor coaching prevented the visitors from winning this game. Zabel held Pittsburg to four scattered hits in the second game, but his numerous bases on balls cost him the game. Adams was hit hard but was given sensational support, especially in the pinches.

DAUBERT REGAINS BATTING LEADERSHIP IN NATIONAL

Cobb Leads American and Magee the Federals.

Chicago, July 3.—Jake Daubert, of Brooklyn, has regained the batting leadership of the National League, according to averages published here today. In the American League Cobb continues in front and Magee holds the leadership in the Federal.

The Nationals' leading batsmen who have taken part in at least half the games played, including those of last Wednesday are:
Daubert, Brooklyn, .336; J. Smith, Boston, .328; Merkle, New York, .323; Luderus, Philadelphia, .321, and Good, Chicago, .313. St. Louis and New York are tied in team batting at .259. Among the pitchers who have worked in ten or more games. Pierce, Chicago, leads with eight won and one lost. Then come Alexander, Philadelphia, 14, and 3, and Meadows, St. Louis, 7 and 2.
Batting leaders of the American League, are Cobb, Detroit, .379; Fournier, Chicago, .343; Jackson, Cleveland, .330; Crawford, Detroit, .329, and LaJoie, Philadelphia, .329. Cobb also leads the base stealers with 51 and has scored most runs—72 for 67 games—but Crawford has outdistanced Cobb in long hits, with total bases numbering 127.
Magee, Brooklnn's manager, heading the Federal batters, has an average of .352. Following him are Campbell, Newark, .343, and Deal, St. Louis, .337. Brooklyn leads the clubs in batting with .282.

TWO GAMES AT ROCKY POINT.

Long Creek Plays Rocky Point to Standstill—Currie Wins.

Rocky Point, N. C., July 3.—In an exciting and well ployed game here this afternoon Long Creek played the fast Rocky Point team to a standstill, the final score being 8 to 8 when the game was called. Henry, for Long Creek, pitched good ball.
In a second game of six innings, Currie defeated Rocky Point 11 to 1. Jackson, pitching for Currie, allowed but one hit. The game was called because of rain.

Funeral of Murray Thomas.

The funeral of Murray Thomas, the two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Thomas, was held from the residence at Seagate yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Rev. W. G. Hall, pastor of Southside Baptist church, and remains were buried in Bellevue cemetery.

LUMBERTON BASEBALL TEAM IS MAKING GOOD RECORD

Lumberton, N. C., July 3.—Lumberton baseball team has met with success so far, having won eight games and lost two. The schedule for next week is as follows: With Rockingham at Lumberton Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday; with Laurinburg at Laurinburg Thursday, Friday and Saturday.
The club never before has received the enthusiastic support that it is enjoying this summer. The Pastime theatre will give a benefit show Thursday night for the club, and the house is expected to be taxed. The players feel that Lumberton will figure favorably in the amateur championship of the State this year.

New York, June 3.—New York and Washington divided honors in a doubleheader here today, Washington taking the first, an eleven inning struggle, 8 to 7, and the Yankees defeating Johnson in the second, 4 to 1. In the first contest Peckinpaugh tied the score in the ninth with a home run, but McBride won the game for Washington with a homer in the eleventh. By pitching in the eleventh inning of the first game and retiring the side in order, Johnson had pitched thirty consecutive scoreless innings. New York, however, broke his string by scoring two runs in the first inning of the second game. Caldwell easily outpitched the Washington star, allowing only three hits.
Altrock and Shanks were ordered off the field in the second game by Umpire O'Loughlin for protesting against a decision.

WEATHER INTERFERES WITH THE CITY LEAGUE

All Four Teams Play Loosely; Big Scores Result.

With Rain Threatening Every Minute, There Was Little Inspiration to First Class Playing—Details of Games.

Weather conditions yesterday badly interfered with the games in the City League scheduled for Sunset Park. All four teams played loosely and big scores resulted. Little life was in evidence and it was apparent that the players expected the rain to come at every minute.
The first game between the W. L. I. and the Y. M. C. A. resulted in a nine to seven victory for the "Y" boys, putting that team in third place in the standing of the club column and forcing the W. L. I. into second place. Hines and Sheppard did the pitching, the first mentioned allowing six and the latter eight hits. Three of the hits gotten off Sheppard were for two bases. The game was called at the end of the seventh inning.
The second game between the Giants and Boys' Brigade resulted in victory for the Giants, with Register pitching to the tune of seven to three. Buck pitched for the Brigade. Three hits were gotten off of Register, while Buck allowed eight. The game was ended in the seventh on account of rain.

Bull Dogs Die In Each Other's Grip

TWO CANINES ENGAGE IN BATTLE ROYAL, EACH FINALLY GETTING DEATH GRAPPLE ON THE OTHER.

The tenacity of the bull dog and his prowess as a "scrapper" have been so well recognized as to become incorporated into modern slang, but yesterday health department officials had a concrete illustration of just what bull dog tenacity is. Residents of lower Nun street, early yesterday, had occasion to send in a hurry call for the carrion cart and when the driver arrived at the foot of the street, he found two brindle bull dogs each with his jaws locked in a death grip upon the other's throat.
They had apparently met by chance in the street a few days or nights ago and observing the bull dog amenities, at once locked for a scrap. The ground gave evidence that they fought on down the street to the water's edge in the river and there just at the mark of low tide, being unable to go further, they grappled with one another until each with his tusks imbedded in the other's throat lay down and died.
Several persons went to the foot of the street to see the result of the remarkable battle and several testified to the unusual spectacle. The names of the owners of the dogs were not ascertained, the nuisance created having been of such violence as to require the immediate removal of the carcasses.

TRAVELING AUDITORS NAMED BY COMMISSION

To Investigate in Every County as to Tax Matters

Wilmington and Other Building and Loan Associations to be Examined—Commission on Court Procedure Issues Note.

(Special Star Correspondence.)
Raleigh, N. C., July 3.—The Corporation Commission, as State Tax Commission, announces the appointment of three traveling auditors to go into every county of the State and investigate as to license, income, inheritance and other taxes that might otherwise escape taxation. The auditors appointed are T. W. Fenner, Raleigh; Albert J. Hauser, Winston-Salem, and C. H. Ray, Waynesville.
Mr. Fenner has been for the past two years tax clerk to the Raleigh City Commission, was for eight years bookkeeper at the State's prison, and came to Raleigh from Scotland Neck where he was register of deeds for a number of years for Halifax county. Mr. Hauser is an expert accountant and has served during a number of terms of the Legislature as clerk to the finance committee of the Senate, being especially familiar with the State finances and sources of revenue. Mr. Ray has been for 20 years mayor of Waynesville and has made a record for uncovering sources for taxation that would otherwise escape taxes, a work that will especially devolve on him in his duties as traveling auditor.
The Raleigh township school board is facing a dilemma in the matter of whether to repair the Murphy school building, badly damaged by fire a few nights ago, or tear it away and erect a new building that shall be fire proof and modern in every particular. Considerable public demand is evident for a new fireproof building. The present building was damaged about $5,000 and is an old frame structure that has long been considered a dangerous fire trap for the hundreds of children it serves.

Coming to Wilmington.

Mr. S. F. Campbell, of the State Department of Insurance, has gone to Wilmington to begin Monday the work of examining the ten or more building and loan associations doing business there. This is carrying out the new policy of the Insurance Department under special legislative direction, of having all the building and loan associations in the State examined once in three years at least and checked up annually for the purpose of safeguarding the interests of the associations and their many thousands of patrons and unifying the methods of business. There will be several deputies from the department at work on missions of this sort in different parts of the State for some time now.

Let the People Speak.

Chief Justice Walter Clark, chairman, Mr. W. S. Wilson, secretary, and the commssion for revision of court procedure in this State, have addressed the following letter "To the Public":
"There is a nation-wide demand that the increased efficiency which has been brought into almost all other departments of activity shall be applied to the administration of justice. To this end our State, like many others, has created a Commission to recommend such changes in the organization and in the procedure of the courts as shall eliminate the delays and other defects complained of, and the expenses incident thereto as far as practical, and shall make the courts more business-like in every respect. The Governor has appointed the undersigned members of the Commission for this State.
"We feel unable to grasp fully so vast a subject and to recommend all the measures that are desirable without the aid of the intelligence and public spirit of the people themselves. We, therefore, request that those who feel an interest in this matter and have suggestions to make that, in their opinion, will aid in making effective the purpose for which this Commission was created, shall send in their suggestions to some member of the committee, or preferably to the secretary, Mr. W. S. Wilson, Raleigh, N. C.
"While lawyers and judges feel a natural interest in this matter, they are not those solely interested for they are merely the agents of the public in the administration of the courts. We request and will value and heartily welcome recommendations and suggestions, not only from the bar and bench but from any of our fellow citizens in every walk of life, who shall feel an interest in the betterment of all matters affecting the courts.
"Most respectfully,
"WALTER CLARK, Chm.
"W. J. ADAMS,
"W. P. BYNUM,
"L. V. BASSETT,
"W. A. GRAHAM,
"W. S. WILSON, Secretary."

ANNIVERSARY OF BATTLE.

Survivors of Fight at Gettysburg Recall Scenes 52 Years Ago.

The third and final day of the three-days' battle at Gettysburg was on July 3rd, 1863, and survivors of that memorable fight still retain vivid memories of the scenes of the terrible conflict. There are at least four Wilmington men, now living, who survived and are hale and hearty at the present time, these being Gen. James I. Metts, Adjutant L. Leon, Capt. Walter G. MacRae and Mr. S. P. Collier.
General Metts was wounded on the second day of the battle and Captain MacRae was wounded and captured on the last day. Messrs. Leon and Collier went through the entire fight without suffering any injury.
General Metts several years ago wrote a small volume giving the history of the famous charge made by North Carolina troops on the last day of the battle. He has accumulated a considerable lot of data on the battle and expects to get it in shape for another book on the battle.

$1,635,000 Hidden
In This Year's Goodyear Tires
Here are amazing facts:
Goodyear Fortified Tires contain five costly features found in no other tire. They have other features not common.
If we omitted those features, this year's probable output would cost us $1,635,000 less. We could add that much to our profits. And you would never know it until troubles came.
This year's improvements alone will cost us $500,000 yearly. Most of this goes into extra rubber—all into extra wear. And we shall spend on research $100,000 this year to find other betterments still.
Users Save $5,000,000
Yet our 1915 price reduction—made February 1st—will save Goodyear users about $5,000,000 this year. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.
These extra features—used by us alone—will save users millions more.
That's why Goodyears dominate. They have long outsold any other. They are gaining new users faster than we can supply them. We hope, for your own sake, that they'll soon win you. Any dealer will supply you. (2419)

TOP O' THE MORNING

Mark you keenly, the great truths are the moral truths. They concern the life we are living now, and to live always. The great test of truth is its effect upon the life.. Truth itself affects life. It pushes away the artificial, the false, the wrong, and, breathing as a soft warm south wind upon life, brings out its strength and fragrance.

It is charcteristic of the great truths that they attack what is contrary to themselves, what is wrong. Truth is aggressive. It points out with unflinching finger the wrong, the untrue, the false, the sin.

Its voice is distinct although most quiet. The only way to get rid of that voice is to shut up the ears. And then the poor fool of a man hasn't changed the voice nor stopped it. He has only cut himself off from hearing it; but not cut himself off from the result it is announcing to him.

Huerta's idea of watchful waiting was that it was not watchful enough to see what he and his conspirators were up to.

Marvel not that things are still happening all over the world. The unexpected is always happening and those who are looking for sensations are not going to be disappointed very long at a time.

The Glorious Fourth is here again. Since it is Sunday, it is opportune that we should meditate upon the blessings that the day whose anniversary we celebrate has meant to the people of this great Nation and to the world.

The American Nation is 139 years old today, and yet but a lad in comparison with the age of some of the other nations of earth and but a baby compared with others. To say the least of it, the Republic is yet in its youth.

A Paris paper says the tenor singers and bass violinists are being sent to the firing line. The penalty is pretty severe, but a road sentence would be more preferable in France at this time.

Don't overlook the fact that we have to adopt plans to get homeseekers to come to North Carolina. There are plenty of people who know about the State's resources but who don't know about our plans for developing them or getting others to do it for us.

The Jacksonville Times-Union says this is something to paste in your hat: "Sheep will eat more than a hundred kinds of weeds that are unpalatable for cattle." However, a cur dog prefers to eat a hundred sheep rather than think of bothering about catching a steer.

The Siler City Grit repeats that "it is said that a sucker is born every minute." Yes, and the father who possibly might have hopes of being the ancestor of a president or a United States senator, may live long enough to lend money to his progeny to take a trip to New York to put money on the scheme of the wire-tappers.

The newspapers all over the country suspect Colonel Bryan of being "booted and spurred for the presidency." The Colonel says the newspapers are trying to assasinate him, but we presume he gets that impression on account of the fact that they prevaricate about him in order to make it appear that he is butting in on their prerogative of rocking the boat.

Eufenie Zapata, brother of Gen. Emilio Zapata, in a bombastic letter declares that "never will the Mexicans be intimidated by the braggadocio of the Yankees," and furthermore asserts that if the Americans intervene "we will go against those invaders and drive them from Mexico." Ignorance enables some Mexicans to believe that they can lick Uncle Sam just as easily as some Americans believe Uncle Sam can lick the whole world.

THIS FALL'S COTTON CROP

That was most welcome news to the South conveyed in an Associated Press dispatch to The Star of yesterday, that the Federal Reserve Board at Washington, even at this early season, had decided to take every possible precaution to prevent a recurrence this fall of conditions such as confronted the South last year as a result of an unusually large cotton crop and the shutting off of a large part of the European market.

A committee with W. P. G. Harding as chairman will determine the best way in which this season's crop may be taken care of, and this committee has begun well in addressing a letter to the Federal Reserve agent in each of the four Southern Federal Reserve bank districts asking for information and suggestions.

In this connection, the estimate by the Department of Agriculture that the South now has a warehouse capacity of nine and a half million bales is both interesting and reassuring. With an increasing domestic demand and a prospective season's yield within the limits of twelve million bales, and the likelihood that the present crop will be raised much cheaper than any previous crop in a decade, the outlook, after all, is not so discouraging for Southern cotton farmers, war or no war.

Nevertheless, too much should not be expected of government aid in the marketing of this or any other crop. It must be remembered that our main dependence must be in our own business judgment and individual strength and resources as a people. We must have confidence in ourselves and hold fast to the self-reliance that individual initiative and character inspire. We are not hot-house plants to be nurtured, and we are not to be the weaklings of paternalism, however able it is to be our protecting aegis. Customary or chronic dependence on the government to come to our aid would gradually reduce us to the state of children of a paternalistic government, which itself exists by our creation and support.

In emergencies, of course, the people may expect assistance and co-operation by the government in their own potential plans for taking care of themselves. We ought not to get too accustomed to looking to Uncle Sam, but at the same time the country is to be congratulated that it has a new banking system which the people may use in times of such stress as came to the cotton growing South last fall.

We need not anticipate any such situation as the cotton growing interests faced last fall, but if the unexpected should happen, the country is in much better position to take immediate action for relief. The Federal Reserveserve bank system is the bulwark that has taken the place of the old banking system which itself had to hunt a port when a storm came and which itself had to beat us to the harbor of refuge. We are that much better off now, so that we are going ahead with confidence instead of quaking in a state of uncertainty.

It is well enough for us not to expect government assistance to assure stable or good prices for cotton in spite of the war in Europe, for after all we will have to finally depend on the law of supply and demand to fix prices. The Federal Reserve banks can only aid us to hold our cotton for better prices, but they can be no guarantee of prices that depend solely upon markets anxious for cotton and able to pay a good price for it.

We can take refuge in a port during a storm, but the port can't stop the storm. So also we can only expect financial relief from banks during distress, while there can be no possible guarantee to remove the cause of distress.

WHY DO THEY LEAVE HOME?

The call sent throughout North Carolina to get her citizens interested in the North Carolina State Bureau of Publicity for Agriculture and Industries emphasized and lamented the fact that 240,000 North Carolinians, now living, are residents of other states. In fact they are natives who have grown up and left the Good Old State.

Why did they leave? That is one question that the State Bureau should find out. It must get down to the bottom facts by searching the reasons and make up an honest answer for itself, whether that answer be creditable to us or not. We must find the cause, else we cannot emphasize and apply the remedy to the best advantage. We may find out that it is necessary to reverse ourselves, to unload some of our preconceived notions and rid ourselves of some of our most coddled ideas.

It is mighty hard for us to divorce ourselves from some traditions and turn away from some customs and some systems and some methods that we have heretofore considered "sacred". We've got to take stock of ourselves, however, and, if we find that there is something the matter with us, we must not make a favorable report on ourselves in order to fool ourselves. Indeed, that is what we are disposed to do, and as a matter of fact we are the only ones whom we can fool by trying to cover up our tracks so we cannot get on our own trail.

Just fancy that when we get down to studying ourselves and then should indict ourselves! We would take offense at it if we were to call a spade a spade in having a talk with ourselves, but we must learn not to do that. We must learn to give and take among ourselves and give ourselves a square deal after looking questions right squarely in the face. When we accuse ourselves of neglecting our opportunities, we must not consider ourselves as knockers. We must investigate first and if we are guilty we should acknowledge the corn. Indeed, it is not knocking when we complain about a condition or a system or a method, provided the complaint is well founded and a remedy is needed. People have been misled into believing that a knock is as good as a boost, whereas we are not knocking but boosting when we blame ourselves with a vew to setting ourselves right. When Paul was bent on pursuing a course that he thought was the proper thing, he saw a great light, got a different view of what he was doing and immediately changed his aim in life. He was on the wrong track and when he was able to see it he did not deny it but confessed the truth and turned over a new leaf.

One of our chief aims in our State-wide organization is to give publicity to the resources, potentialities and opportunities in North Carolina. How are we to do that if we do not know them? While we are giving ourselves publicity we have to give some other states or communities some for what they have done by way of example for us. Not so long ago The Star mentioned what a certain Georgia county was doing along the lines of progress, our object being to emphasize the fact that North Carolina counties could see the point and follow the example of the county in Georgia.

We were somewhat astonished at the result. A man came to us and said he was impressed with the article and had gone to Georgia to see about it. He was convinced, had actual offers of positive opportunities there and came back home to make arrangements to go to Georgia. We don't have to ask him why. He was going to leave because of the opportunities for himself and his family.

We knew the Georgia county referred to and pointed out to him the fact that the resources and advantages of his own North Carolina county were far greater than those of the Georgia county. "Oh, I know that," he replied right off the reel, "but the resources of the Georgia county are being developed, while those in my own county are like they were when Columbus discovered America. Furthermore, the people of my county are actually organized to fight a progressive movement long ago adopted by the county down in Georgia."

As a matter of fact, ten years ago that Georgia county appeared to be a hopeless community of mossbacks. It was in a far worse condition than the North Carolina county, but the spirit of progress got among its people. They improved their school system, built good roads, organized community associations, and land companies were organized to attract home seekers. They have the goods to show and are making definite offers of farming lands on plans that enable people of only moderate means to own their own farms, the terms being most liberal to all comers.

If we had that same opportunity, as well as others, there would be no reason why a native Carolinian should be enticed away from his native land. If we will develop our resources of every description in North Carolina, we won't have to wonder why young men leave the State.

How many counties in Eastern North Carolina are doing things that are causing home seekers to check them off their map so far as locating in them is concerned? We know a few, but they should immediately make a survey of themselves and take another course, unless it is their purpose to remain in a primitive state. What suits them certainly will not suit home seekers. Home seekers are looking for advantages and opportunities. They are not looking around for a chance to get where life makes everybody tired.

LEAVE IT TO WILSON

The North Carolina Press Association, in its annual session at Montreat last Thursday, gave its hearty endorsement to President Wilson for his manner of dealing with the constantly arising crises coming to us as a people and nation because of the war conditions in Europe. In fact, the resolution adopted at Montreat and telegraphed to the President represented the sentiment and deliberate judgment not only of the North Carolina editors but those of South Carolina as well. The members of the South Carolina Press Association met Thursday in joint session with the North Carolina association, and the resolution offered was adopted by a rising vote of the entire assemblage. Such a resolution had been adopted a day or two before by the South Carolina Press Association in its own annual session at Chick Springs, S. C. The resolution adopted at Montreat, strong in endorsement of the administration's foreign policy, speaks for itself in the following unmistakable terms:

"The North Carolina Press Association would send a token to Woodrow Wilson, president of all the people, of its unqualified approval of the wisdom and courage he has displayed in his position in the administrative policies in connecton with the European war. It would make record of its admiration for the exercise of statesmanship through which he has been able to measure up to the varying situations of the recent eventful past and for that manifestation of sterling partiotism which has inspired the country with confidence in the ability of his head to direct and his hand to guide it to a safe and an honorable deliverance. So far as this association is collectively representative of prevailing sentiment it feels justified in extending to President Wilson not only a vote of faith and confidence but an assurance of whole-hearted support and an upholding of his hands to the finish of this crucial period in the country's history. The South Carolina Press Association, meeting jointly with the North Carolina editors, desires to add to these expressions of confidence and support its hearty and unreserved concurrence."

The meaning of such an endorsement is that the editors of the Carolinas are perfectly willing to leave it to Wilson. They decided to do that for the simple reason that the country has a President in whose ability confidence is placed and in whose wisdom, justice and Americanism the country can rely. This is the meaning of similar endorsements by the bankers, manufacturers, civic, social and industrial organizations in North Carolina and in practically every state of the Union.

Broadly speaking, that is the same reason why former Presidents Roosevelt and Taft and other eminent Americans of all parties have given their distinguished assurance that they endorse the President's policy for handling questions of the supremest concern to the American people and their country. It is because they have faith in and can put their trust in President Wilson. It seems to be unanimous, and it certainly expresses the judgment of The Star.

The Star wishes to be counted as standing right up with the North and South Carolina editors in favor of every word of the strong and unequivocable resolution so adequately and comprehensively covering the ground to be taken by patriotic and loyal American editors.

JUST WHAT WE NEED

We need the necessary and useful things we haven't got. When we find out what we haven't got, we will know what we ought to have. If we wish to find out the plainly necessary industries that Wilmington should have, we can easily ascertain what they are by looking around us and noting that they are not in existence. If we want them as badly as we need them we will have to go to work and build them or do without.

It isn't any credit for us to do without an industry that is an absolute necessity to us. A canning industry is one of them. A canning factory would start us on the way towards a canning industry, so the people of Wilmington and all this section should heartily support the movement to establish a canning factory in Wilmington. We need it. It is vitally necessary, so we should have it by all means.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The promotion of James H. Cowan of the Wilmington Dispatch to the presidency of the North Carolina Press Association was a deserved tribute to a splendid editor and charming personality. Long may may be wave!—Columbia State.

The North Carolina editors in selecting Jimmy Cowan as the head of the N. C. Press Association have picked a rare gem from the journalistic field, in fact the selection could not have been more appropriate and we take pleasure in saying "Hail to the Chief" and wishing him an enjoyable and effective regime.—Newbern Journal.

The North Carolina Press Association has done well in selecting as its president Editor James H. Cowan, of the Wilmington Dispatch. Mr. Cowan is one of the most gifted newspaper men of the State and his writings are set to a righ and noble key. Such men benefit any community in which they may live and move for their efforts are ever trained in a beneficial direction. He will do honor to the office given him. The entire list of officers is one to be proud of.—Charlotte News.

First Again. You just can't keep North Carolina down. Here it is that J. H. Wayne, who went from Pitt cuonty to Florida thirty years ago, was elected the first treasurer of St. Lucie county when the office was established and still holds the place. The Legislature has ordered the office abolished at the end of the present term. That was probably the only way to get the North Carolinian out. Beat the record if you can!—Raleigh News and Observer.

Doctor Campbell had him a laugh over a verbatim report of a veteran's description of the recent reunion in Richmond, the soldier saying: "I saw old men with one leg drunk." This week the doctor ran across a similar bull in The Youth's Companion and he phoned it in. An officer was advertising the fact that he had been instructed to enforce the law against "chickens running at large and riding bicycles on the sidewalks!"—Newton Enterprise.

The State Press Association, according to its custom, elevated its first vice president of last year to the presidency for the coming year, but the fact that the election of Mr. James H. Cowan, of the Wilmington Dispatch, to the presidency of the association was not a surprise does not alter the fitness of the choice. Mr. Cowan is a man of unusual social charm, he has ability of a high order, he has exalted ideals of the mission of the newspaper, and he is altogether worthy of the high honor which his fellow editors have conferred upon him.—Raleigh News and Observer.

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH WILL BE CELEBRATED

Wrightsville Beach to Be Decorated in Patriotic Colors.

Thousands of Wilmingtonians Will Go to Seaside Resorts Tomorrow for Day of Pleasure and Recreation—Athletic Events.

While today is the Fourth of July when Americans are accustomed to celebrate the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, owing to the fact that it is Sunday, the formal observance of this historic transaction will take place tomorrow. As usual, thousands of Wilmington people will go to the seaside resorts in this vicinity, notably Wrightsville and Carolina beaches. The former has laid claim to its interest in the expression of our National pride and reverence by putting forth extra efforts to decorate in attractive style with patriotic colors.

United States flags are already waving over Lumina, all the hotels and many of the cottages showing that the owners and visitors intend to make this the most brilliant celebration ever held there. The Tidewater Power Company is working with a representative set of citizens arranging games, contests, athletic feats, music and dancing that will furnish amusement to the thousands of laugourous vacationists from Wilmington and elsewhere, who will go there to rest, recreate and forget the strife of daily toil.

Athletic Contests.

A special feature of the day is the athletic events at Lumina, commencing at 10:30 A. M. The contest is open to all amateurs and no entrance fee will be charged.

The events composing the programme are:

At Carolina Beach.

Several hundred people are expected to visit Carolina Beach tomorrow the day being observed there by the two councils of the Junior Order United American Mechanics of this city. Besides the usual splendid attractions of the beach as a summer resort there will be, especially for the benefit of visitors Monday, several interesting athletic contests. Three boats will leave the pier at the foot of Princess street during the day, one at 9 A. M. one at 2:30 and one at 7:30 P. M.

CONCERT AT BEACH.

Whitlock-West Orchestra Will Play at Carolina Resort This Afternoon.

The Whitlock-West Orchestra will give an enjoyable concert at Carolina Beach this afternoon at 4 o'clock and with favorable weather it is expected that there will be a large crowd present. FINE SCHOLARSHIP RECORD.

Mr. W. Nicholas Post Makes Splendid Showing at Harvard—At Home.

Mr. W. Nicholas Post has returned from Harvard University and is at his home at Wrightsville Beach for his summer vacation. As an evidence of the thoroughness of preparation in the Wilmington public schools his record at the University of North Carolina and Harvard makes a fine showing.

He entered the public school in the first grade and finally graduated from the Wilmington High School in the class of 1909, winning the Amy Bradley medal for highest average grade in scholarship and at the same time winning the two-year scholarship at the State university. In his third year at the University he won the appointment to the Phi Beta Kappa Society for excellent scholarship and graduated in 1913 with the B. A. degree.

He was appointed to a scholarship at Harvard University by the North Carolina Alumni. He specialized in the Harvard school of Applied Science through the session of 1913-14, and in 1914 gave up the scholarship to take a course in English and succeeded in getting the M. A. degree in one year. He has given a good account of himself and the Wilmington schools as well as many friends are proud of his splendid record.

Postoffice Holiday.

Holiday hours will be observed at the Wilmington postoffice tomorrow, Monday, July 5th. The general delivery window will be open from 11 A. M. to 12 M. and from 7 to 8 P. M. The stamp window will be cloed all day. Stamps will be on sale at the general delivery window during the hours open One delivery and one collection will be made in the city and on the beach.

BUSY MAKING ROAD REPAIRS

Supt. R. A. Burnett and Road Force Doing Efficient Work—Will be Completed This Week.

Supt. R. A. Burnett and the road forces of New Hanover have been busy for the last few days in making repairs to the splendid highways in this county. About 20 miles of improved roads have been given surface treatment and it is expected that this work will be completed by the latter part of this week. Roads that have come in for a share of surface treatment are: Federal Point Road, Wrightsville Turnpike, Villa View road, Masonboro road, Market Street road and the Castle Haynes road.

As an example of the efficient work that is being done by the county road forces in making repairs to the highways, Mr. Burnett, and a force of 19 men, prisoners from the convict camps, treated and re-surfaced with granite stone chips two and a half miles of the Castle Haynes road, leading from the city limits at Smith's creek to a point beyond Wrightsboro.

The Barrett auto truck of a thousand gallons capacity, under the direction of Mr. W. H. Tourison, was used in spreading the car of Barber asphalt on this road. The work of spreading the hot seal coat of asphalt was begun Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock and was completed by 6:30 P. M. Mr. Burnett with his well organized force was put to a severe test in following the auto distributor but was able to cover in a single day the stretch, practically two and a half miles in length, ten feet wide all the way, with the granite stone chips.

The prisoners used in this work were "honor roll" convicts, popularly known as "trusties." They were under the supervision of a foreman, experienced in road work.

Chairman W. A. McGirt, of the Board of County Commissioners, has directed that the prisoners be given a good dinner tomorrow and that they be allowed to observe the Fourth by having such recreation and pleasures as the convict camps afford.

GENERAL RAINS YESTERDAY.

Precipitation in All Southern States Except This One.

The weather report of yesterday showed that it rained heavily in most of the Southern states. More rain fell yesterday in several different stations in Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana than fell in Wilmington during the month of June. The day here was beautiful but a few degrees too warm. The delightful weather that has prevailed the past several days had people accustomed to the cool to the extent that many suffered yesterday, but the report shows that the thermometer lacked five degrees of reaching what it did a couple of weeks ago. There is no report yet that the storms that are disturbing the Mississippi valley will reach here any time soon, but there has been important temperature change and it is likely that precipitation will soon follow.

ATTRACTIVE QUARTERS

J. J. Hopkins Son & Co. on Corner Second and Market.

J. J. Hopkins Sons & Co. have moved into the new place built for them on the southwest corner of Second and Market streets. They have been located for many years in the Front street market and have a large patronage. Their many patrons will now find them in one of the neatest and most up-to-date buildings, especially arranged to suit their business, to be found in the State.

The "white" scheme has been carried out thoroughly in all the arrangements, everything being painted white and the market being fitted up with white marble counters. They have their own icing plant and all the equipment is strictly sanitary.

KNOWS NOTHING OF RUMOR.

Northern Lady Declares Powder Mill Would be Misfortune.

In connection with the rumors going the rounds that Wilmington is to have a powder mill, The Star is requested to state that the Northern lady, who does not care to have her name mentioned, reported as being here for the purpose of purchasing some property, knows absolutely nothing about the rumors. She declares that a powder mill would be the last thing she would want to see in Wilmington or near this city as it would not in any way help to make it a better city either from a business standpoint or otherwise.

BURNED AUTO AT SUNSET

Mr. Sam Seigler Has Misfortune to Lose Machine.

Mr. Sam Seigler loaned his automobile Friday night to Mr. George Brooks. Mr. Brooks, when through with the car drove it into his yard with the expectation of returning it Saturday, but found it missing yesterday morning. After a careful search the machine was found in ashes in Sunset Park, and only recognized by figures in the metal parts. Mr. Seigler had $600 insurance which partially covers his loss. No evidence has yet been secured as to how the machine came to be taken away.

PATRIOTIC EXERCISES.

Sunday School of First Baptist Church Will Have Special Programme.

The Sunday school of the First Baptist church at its regular meeting this morning at 9:45 o'clock will have a special programme of music, addresses and other features in commemoration of the Fourth. The exercises have been arranged under the direction of the Baraca classes of the church. The public is cordially invited.

Fuchs' Bargain Sale.

Elsewhere in today's paper will be found the announcement of a bargain sale by J. W. H. Fuchs, the well known dealer in dry goods on South Front street. His entire stock has been marked down and those looking for big values at minimum prices will do well to visit this store.

Funeral of Infant Son.

The funeral of the one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Owens was held yesterday from the residence, No. 202 Wright street. His death occurred at 11:30 o'clock Friday morning. Friends will tenderly sympathize with the bereaved parents. Interment took place yesterday at Bellevue cemetery.

Lord's Supper at Sixth Street.

The Ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be celebrated at Sixth Street Advent Christian church at this evening's service. Several candidates for baptism will be immersed.

NEGRO KILLED AT BOLTON

Went Under Freight Car to Escape Rain When Switching Engine Was on Yard—Others Escape.

Joe Ohree, a colored employe of the Waccamaw Lumber Company, was instantly killed at Bolton yesterday afternoon at 3:25 o'clock when a freight car, under which he with several companions had gone for shelter from a shower of rain, was shoved forward by a switching engine of the Atlantic Coast Line. The other negroes escaped but Ohree was unable to get out before the car wheels passed over his body cutting him almost intwo near the chest, causing death instantly.

The engine was running extra and was in charge of Engineer P. H. Jenkins, of Wilmington. Conductor R. T. Clement, also of this city, was in charge of the train and was not far distant from where the negro was run over. There was a string of 14 cars on the track and none of the train crew knew that the negroes had sought shelter under the cars. When the cars were shoved forward several of the negroes rushed out and the signal was given instantly to stop. Only one of the cars passed over Ohree.

The deceased negro was about 30 years old and his home was at Georgetown, S. C., where the remains were sent last night.

LENIENCY TO VIOLATORS.

Recorder Empie Allows Them to Buy Dog Badges After Arrests.

Recorder Empie has been very lenient the past few days to those who have been arrested for violating the dog tax ordinance. When the police found a person with a dog and no license, the man has been arrested and when taken to court and a badge shown, he was not punished, no matter when he had bought the badge. It is stated that some have been allowed to go buy the badges after trial began. The police force is determined to make people buy the badges and still persist on bringing them into court and making them show a badge, if nothing else. The list yesterday included Gilbert Brown, Gertrude Pearsall, Sam Williams, Charles Carter, Mary Price, Hattie Innman, Peter Lacy, Tom Everett, all colored. Also Messrs. Rudolph Duncan, J. L. King and T. E. Cooper.

Mr. R. A. Wright, violating speed law, judgment suspended.

The case of John Holland and Lisbon Noble, said Recorder Empie, appears to be a serious one. The evidence on both sides was only vague and not very strong. The warrant under which the boys are being tried calls for assault with deadly weapon, but a witness testified that he had been ordered to give up his money while the defendants had him covered with a pistol. If this can be proven, the defendants are guilty of highway robbery. The witness alleged that he gave the boys a dollar and a half, but they claim that the change was made as a result of a card game. The case was continued till Tuesday.

REPORT OF JUNE ARRESTS

Operating Auto Without License Causes Many—No Big Arrests.

The report of arrests made during the month of June was made public yesterday. There was a total of 138 arrests, 49 white and 89 colored. Larceny and operating autos without license caused the greatest number. The itemized list follows:

Violating sanitary ordinance	1	0
Larceny	1	19
Violating prohibition law	1	5
Storebreaking	0	4
Cruelty to animals	1	0
Housebreaking	0	1
Total	49	89

ATTENDANCE WAS SMALL.

Proposition for Building Canning Factory Indefinitely Postponed.

Mr. R. W. Hicks, who was to have held a meeting yesterday in the court house at 11 o'clock, thought it best not to disclose his plans to the small crowd gathered. A number of farmers were present to tell of what was going to waste in the county and vicinity and what could be supplied to a local canning factory, and Mr. Hicks had figures on the entire cost and income of such a factory and his plans of development.

A number of local firms were to have representatives present to buy stock if the proposition looked safe enough and worthy of support, but most of those supposed to be present to buy stock were absent, hence the meeting was indefinitely postponed.

SAID FATHER WAS BANKER.

New York Man Poses as Being from Wrightsville Beach—Marries Girl.

Mayor Thos. H. Wright, of Wrightsville Beach, has received a letter from Miss Iola McRay, No. 110 East 30th street, New York, asking for information about Eldridge S. Price, who recently eloped with a relative and the last time heard from was in Chicago. Miss McRay said that the young man claimed that his father was S. Price, president of a bank at Wrightsville Beach.

Inasmuch as there is no bank at Wrightsville Beach and nobody in Wilmington by the name of Eldridge S. Price, it would appear that the man was putting up a hoax. Mayor Wright has written Miss McRay that he can give her no information.

Selected as Executor and Trustee By Many Thoughtful People of Means

Many persons of wealth and influence and well qualified to judge of fitness, have named The People's Savings Bank in their wills as Executor and Trustee. This indicates a very high degree of confidence because it means committing to the Bank's management interests held in the highest valuation—the interests of family and other heirs.

Whether your estate is to be large or of only moderate size, you cannot better assure its careful administration in the best interests of your heirs, than by having your lawyer write this Bank into your will as Executor and Trustee. If your will has been written without this provision, the omission may be corrected by a codicil. Call or write in regard to this or any savings or trust business.

TELEGRAPH REPORTS ON COTTON ORDERED

From American Consuls in Foreign Countries.

Information Will be Given Monthly on the Consumption of Cotton in Other Countries—For Use American Cotton Interests.

Washington, July 3.—Monthly telegraphic reports from American consuls in foreign cotton consuming districts, giving the mill consumption of cotton, cotton spindles in operation and cotton and cotton goods on hand, have been ordered sent to Washington for the use of the American cotton interests. In announcing this today the department of commerce stated that with these reports and the elaborate domestic reports issued by the census bureau the authorities will be afforded scientific data, commensurate with the large interests involved on the country's largest single item of export and its most valuable crop, excepting corn.

Reports on cotton production also have been ordered from American consuls at Alexandria, Egypt; Bombay, India; Callao, Peru; Moscow, Russia; Rio Janeiro, Brazil, and Shanghai, China, the principal centers of production of cotton outside of the United States.

Few countries have provided adequate systems of determining the production and consumption of cotton. The foreign data used here, therefore, has been from miscellaneous sources and obtained by correspondence. Consular reports have collected a portion of the information. In the future the uncertainty that has existed in some respects in the past will be minimized. The governments of India, Egypt and Russia compile and publish estimates of acreage and production from time to time during the season and it is said that the Indian government proposes to establish a system of enumerating the bales at the presses. There has been a growing demand for the collection in other important cotton producing and cotton consuming countries of information regarding the staple similar to that compiled for the United States. Its value is emphasized by the fact that a very large proportion of the crop in this country is consumed in foreign countries.

Both the interior and exterior of the house were tastefully decorated with Japanese paper lanterns, and the event was one of the most successful of its kind that Whiteville has had for some time.

Mrs. Walter Lamar Alexander, of Charlotte, who is to be the dame of honor at the marriage of her sister, Miss Routh Bridgers, to Lieutenant J. F. Farley, Jr., on Wednesday afternoon ,is expected to arrive in Wilmington tomorrow. The wedding will be very quiet and will be attended only by immediate friends of the family. Following the wedding the bride and groom will leave for the Adirondacks in New York State, where they will spend a month or more. Lieutenant Farley is stationed on the coast guard cutter Seminole.

MASTER ROBERT LESTER CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Master Robert Lester Lucas, the little four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Lucas, of East Wilmington, entertained at his home yesterday quite a number of his little friends, in commemoration of his Fourth year birthday. The reception was extensively attended, many interesting games were participated in by the little folks and refreshments were served. It was a happy occasion for the children and the juvenile host was the recipient of many beautiful presents, for which he is appreciative.

SCHULKEN-WATERS MARRIAGE A SURPRISE TO WHITEVILLE

Whiteville, N. C., July 3.—Friends in this town were greatly surprised to learn of the marriage of Mr. Martin H. Schulken and Miss Annie Waters, which took place Thursday night at a late hour. Mr. Schulken is the junior member of the firm of Schulken, Toon and Schulken, lawyers, of Whiteville. The only attendants at the wedding, which ceremony was performed by Rev. J. P. Pate, at the Methodist parsonage, were Mr. and Mrs. W. Brown. The last named couple were married in a similar way and at the same place two weeks ago, the attendants on that occasion being the newly wedded Mr. and Mrs. Schulken. The bride and groom left on the late train Thursday night, presumably for Wrightsville Beach.

WILMINGTON BECOMING A MECCA FOR EDUCATORS.

During the past week a number of teachers from Asheville, N. C., Atlanta, Ga., and Washington, D. C., have come to Wilmington to get training in natural educational methods as taught by Mrs. Winifred Sackville Stoner.

Next week the noted educator, Miss C. E. Mason, of the Castle School, Tarrytown, N. Y., comes to be Mrs. Stoner's guest for several weeks. As "The Castle" is America's largest training school for Natural Education teachers, Miss Mason will be pleased to meet any young ladies of Wilmington who are interested in this work or parents of young ladies who wish to take a college preparatory course.

While in the city Miss Mason expects to employ a Wilmington girl for one of her teachers and already several girls are hard at work taking the Natural Education training to fit them for the position.

Other girls are preparing to be assistants in the Natural Education school to be opened in Wilmington in September. Little Winifred Sackville Stoner will be one of the instructors in the Wilmington school, teaching etymology, natural history, French and Esperanto. The pupils will be limited to the small number of ten, ranging in age from four to seven years.

"Triumphal Amazons Roldini"—Miss Grace Shepard.

Spanish Caprice (Nicke)—Miss Mary Sinclair.

Elfin Dance (Jensen); "The Dawn" from a "Day in Venice" (Nebin)—Miss Lilias Quelch.

WRIGHTSVILLE BEACH

Mr. W. J. O'Brien, of Durham, is a guest at the Hanover Inn.

Mr. L. E. Hall and family have moved to their cottage near Station No. 3.

Services will be held at the Chapel on the Beach tonight at 8:30 o'clock.

Asheville Citizen: "Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Erskine have gone to Wrightsville Beach to spend two weeks."

Mr. C. M. Shannon, of Roanoke, Va., is spendng some time at the beach, a guest at the Hanover Inn.

Miss Helen Mallory and her nephew, Master Jim Van Ness, of Charlotte, are visitors at Wrightsville Beach.

Misses Maud and Mayneita Semms, Leila May and Catherine Gates, of Memphis, Tenn., are spending some time at the Humber cottage.

Messrs. Louis Hanson, Jr., Jack Curran, J. M. Byrd and Clif Morriss are spending the week-end at one of the portable canvas houses near Lumina.

Mass will be celebrated this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea. Father Leo, of Salisburg, will be celebrant.

Mr. J. O. Reilly and family have moved down to the beach for the summer. They are occupying Sanders' Cottage, No. 521.

There are a large number of guests at Cooleemee, the summer cottage of the Y. W. C. A., for the week-end. Reservations for July, August and September are coming in rapidly.

Rev. E. deF. Heald, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, will conduct services at the beach chapel tonight at 8:30 o'clock. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Yesterday's Greensboro News: "Dr. John Wheeler has returned from Wrightsville Beach. Mrs. Wheeler, who accomanied him to the beach, stopped in Durham on the way home, where she is visiting relatives."

Vesper services will be conducted under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian Association at the beach chapel this afternoon at 5 o'clock by Rev. W. V. McRae, pastor of Trinity Methodist church, Wilmington. The public is cordially invited to attend.

There was a large attendance at the week-end dances at Lumina last evening. The travel to the beach from Wilmington during the past week has been especially good and many features provided for entertainment at Lumina have met with the cordial approval of the general public.

Mr. R. H. Sykes, a prominent attorney attorney of Durham, leaves today for his home after spending sometimes at the beach. Mr. Sykes was formerly of Wilmington and has, during the many years he has been away, visited here every summer. His stay was cut short this time on account of business matters and he will probably return again this summer.

Among the latest arrivals at the Oceanic are: Mr. M. Washburn, Jr., Montgomery, Ala.; O. R. Craig, Southport; Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Johnson, Raleigh; Mr. P. Z. Milligan, Philadelphia; Robert T. Carrington, Baltimore; W. D. Hull, West Minster, S. C.; Mrs. W. L. Baldwin, Asheville; Mr. Ed. T. Richardson, Columbia, S. C.; Messrs. R. F. Huddleston, E. D. Lane, Jr., and H. F. Scott, Richmond, Va.; Messrs. C. J. Hunt and H. R. Hoener, Whiteville; Mr. F. E. Woodall, Kenansville; Mr. M. C. McClendon, Atlanta; Mr. Joe Wallace, New York city, and Mr. Ben. J. Andrews, Norfolk, Va.

GASOLINE BOATS MUST MAKE LESS NOISE.

For some time residents at the beach have had their morning sleep disturbed by gasoline launches in Bank's channel which were operated without mufflers. It proved anything but pleasant to be awakened at 6 A. M. by a gasoline launch tearing up the channel, making a loud popping noise, and yesterday the board of aldermen of the town decided that it was time it stopped.

The following ordinance was adopted: "It is hereby ordained that all gasoline boats plying in Bank's Channel be required to be provided with underwater mufflers."

The Tidewater Power Company has just completed a map of the town which gives the numbers of all the cottages on the island from inlet to inlet. This has been adopted by the town aldermen as the official map of numbers and designations as a matter of convenience.

CONCERT TODAY AT THE OCEANIC HOTEL

The Oceanic Hotel will observe the Fourth today with an elaborate dinner and concerts will be given by Prof. William W. Levin's orchestra from 1 to 2:30 p. m. and from 6:30 p. m. to 8 p. m. The programme for the afternoon concert follows:

FIRST SUNDAY CONCERT BY RICHARDSON'S ORCHESTRA

Don Richardson's orchestra will give its first Sunday concert of the season at Lumina this afternoon at 4 o'clock. This will consist of the playing of popular airs and selections and there will no doubt be a large attendance. Mr. Richardson is a talented violinst and in addition to his playing there will be a cello solo by Mr. Gordohn and vocal solos by Peter J. Smith.

The concert by Richardson's orchestra will begin tonight at 8:45 o'clock. A special programme has been prepared for this occasion which includes "Aida" (Grand March) by Verdi, "The Swan" by Saent-Saens, "Madame Butterfly" by Puccini, "Cossack Revel" by Masvkowski and the "Spring Song" by Mendelssohn. Mr. Gordohn will give a cello solo, "Canteleno" by Goldieman. Solos by Mr. Smith will include "The Door of Hope" by Bat and "Answer" by Robyn.

GUNS MADE TO BILK N. Y., SAYS MAXIM

Hudson Maxim, inventor and American authority in the realm of high explosives, in a statement today declared that some of the guns have been made and some of the shells cast which shall compel New York city to save itself from destruction by paying the biggest gold indemnity that was ever imposed upon a community.

"Few people have the power of imagination to see that such a thing as the invasion of this country is going to happen, and to feel the real horrors of it until after it has happened," said Mr. Maxim. "Every soldier who goes to war confidently believes that the bullet to kill him has never yet been cast. We are all endowed with the gambler's hope and the gambler's faith in chance. If it were not for this we should all be cowards indeed.

"The greatest welfare workers in this country are those men and women, like the members of the Navy League, the Army League, the National Security League and the American Legion, and those who are writing articles and books upon the subject of our defenseless condition. If the people of this country could only be aroused to a realization of how actual is their danger there would be an uprising of the whole people from ocean to ocean, and the greatest united cry that ever went up to God in a call to arms for national defense.

"Cleveland Moffett has done a big, patriotic duty in writing the admirable serial just now appearing in McClure's, 'The Conquest of America.' What he has done is to tell a story of what has actually happened. Hindsight is much better than foresight. He takes the reader forward to 1921 and from that vantage point gives him an opportunity to look backward into the past, which is our present and our immediate future, and let the reader see into what a hell of war we are drifting.

"Some of the guns have been made, some of the shells have been cast, and certain it is that many more are in the making, and in the casting, which shall command and compel New York city to save itself from destruction by paying the biggest gold indemnity that was ever imposed upon a community.

"The pernicious propagandism of pacificism has paralyzed the reasoning faculties of a large number of the American people. As I have said in my book, 'Defenseless America,' 'Pacificism has ringed the nose of the American people, and is leading them, blind and unknowing, to the slaughter.'"

WOODMEN CELEBRATE IN LUMBERTON MONDAY

Robeson Veterans' Reunion at Rowland Tuesday

Odd Fellows to be Initiated—Town Ordinances Revised—Postoffice at Bellamy Discontinued—Sunday School Picnic.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, N. C., July 3.—Preparations are being made for a big Woodmen of the World celebration here Monday, when it is expected that a large crowd will be in attendance. The exercises will be conducted at the flowing well near the residence of Mr. J. P. Townsend. There will be a big parade, after which addresses will be delivered by local speakers and then dinner will be served. With good weather, Monday will be a big day in Lumberton.

For the benefit of those in this part of the county who desire to attend the annual reunion of the Confederate Veterans at Rowland next Tuesday, the A. C. L. southbound fast train will stop at Pembroke that morning and take on passengers for Rowland. Lumberton people can leave here on the 7:15 Seaboard train and reach Rowland shortly after 8 o'clock. Convenient arrangements will be made also for returning home the same night. It is said that Rowland will take care of the visitors in great shape.

On Friday night of next week an Odd Fellows degree team from Fayetteville will visit Lumberton for the purpose of conferring degrees on several candidates. After the lodge work has been done, a banquet will be enjoyed, the committee in charge leaving nothing undone to make the occasion one of much pleasure. The local lodge is in a most flourishing condition, adding new members all the time.

The Seaboard will run an excursion to Norfolk Tuesday, the 6th, passengers leaving Lumberton at 6:30 on regular train for Hamlet where connection will be made with excursion train. Two full days and one night will be spent in Norfolk. Fare for the round trip from Lumberton will be $4.50.

Mr. Robert Dees, now Lumberton's oldest citizen, will celebrate his 85th birthday tomorrow. The infirmities of old age have caused Mr. Dees to become very feeble, but not many days pass that he is not seen on the street. He has never found it necessary to use eye glasses. Mr. Dees is a native of Anson county, but moved to Lumberton about 60 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Dees were married between 55 and 60 years ago.

Sunday School Picnic.

The Presbyterian Sunday school enjoyed a picnic in the grove adjoining the residence of Mrs. Claire Thomas in the western part of town yesterday afternoon. The other Sunday schools in town were invited, and the occasion was a most delightful one.

Monday being a legal holiday, the banks in Lumberton all will be closed, the postoffice will observe Sunday hours and the cotton mills will be shut down for the day.

Messrs. Eli Wishart and Rowland Dees, who were operated on for appendicitis at the Thompson hospital several days ago, are recovering rapidly. Mr. Wishart expects to leave the hospital next week.

The excursion which was operated by the Seaboard last Sunday was not a success in point of passengers and it is understood no more Sunday specials will be run until the 18th. Seventy-two tickets for Wilmington were sold here last Sunday, which was more than the number of passengers carried. All who went, however, had an enjoyable trip.

A new meat market was opened up here this morning on Fourth street between Chestnut and Walnut.

Town Ordinances Revised.

A lengthy meeting of the town authorities was held last night for the purpose of revising the town ordinances, adding to, cutting out, etc. The law regulating advertising in town was changed so that any one engaged in business in town has the privilege of putting out hand bills, etc. These, however, must not be tacked up, hung up, or thrown in yards. Those desiring to advertise in town who are not engaged in business here will be required to get permits.

A two-horse wagon load of watermelons was sold here this week, first of the season. Size and quality were below medium.

"That Texas Quartette," which many Lumberton people heard sing at Wrightsville Beach last Sunday, has been engaged at the Pastime theatre for the week beginning July 12th.

Office Nobody Wanted.

The postoffice at Bellamy has been discontinued because no one could be found who would serve as postmaster. Bellamy, is only two miles from Allenton on the Seaboard.

Hail Insurance On Growing Crops

Address Delivered by Mr. O. K. Laroque, of Marion, S. C., Before the North Carolina Bankers' Association, in its Recent Session at Wrightsville Beach.

It is a recognized fact that in any community where the farmers are prosperous all classes of business are booming and the banks carry a good line of deposits with very small bills payable and re-discounts. It is therefore the duty of the bankers and other business men to render to their farmer friends and customers every possible assistance in their efforts to become prosperous and continue so.

It is upon the farmer that the prosperity and progress of our Southland depends. The man who is securing the largest net return from his farming operations is the man who, by the use of improved machinery and scientific farming methods, is harvesting two bales of cotton or two bushels of grain where one formerly grew. He doesn't object to 50 per cent. extra expense, if he is rewarded with 100 per cent. increased income.

Of what avail, however, is the improved machinery or scientific methods if, when the crop, in the production of which he and his family have toiled from early morn till the late evening, following the plow or bending over the hoe, for the purpose of paying that mortgage, perhaps, and providing for those children the education to which they are entitled; of what avail, I say, is all this work and hardship, if, just before the harvest, which gives promise of results even beyond the expectations of the most optimistic, a black cloud comes up in the evening and, in a few moments the storm breaks over the farm, and the dreadful hail, driven by a strong wind, sweeps away the results of that labor and blasts the farmer's hopes of paying his obligations and providing the necessary education and support for his dependent ones.

The enormous havoc wrought by hail storms has only been realized during the past few years. Hail storms have been destroying growing crops of tobacco, cotton, corn, wheat, oats and other small grain for many years, but until the day of good roads, rural free delivery and telephones, the news was not passed about generally. The farmers of one community would suffer from the destruction of their crops, and their neighbors in another community would know nothing about it. It is now fully recognized that hail storms yearly wipe out millions of dollars' worth of growing crops all over the Southland, and in order to distribute these losses and save the unfortunate losers from utter bankruptcy, hail insurance has been devised, and numbers of the most progressive farmers are now securing this protection each year.

When a real estate loan is made, the mortgage invariably requires a fire insurance policy as security against loss in the event the mortgaged building or buildings are damaged or destroyed by fire. This is a protection to both mortgagor and mortgagee and the premiums are among the best investments the mortgagor makes. There are methods of preventing or extinguishing fires, but no man has yet devised a method of preventing a hail storm or stopping it after it has started.

Is it not more important, therefore, as a plain business proposition, that a farmer protect his life's work and investment, as well as his creditors, by providing himself with a hail insurance policy when he requests a loan or when his crop is planted?

Chief Inspector Sloan, of the State Department of Agriculture, South Carolina, in his report to Commissioner E. J. Watson, has the following to say in reference to the destruction caused by a hail storm in York county, S. C., July, 1914:

"Crops of both corn and cotton which had every promise of yielding large returns are left a scene of destitution which would remind one of the pale winter scene during the month of January. Farmers are disheartened and tenants are leaving the farm. Farmers who own their own land might be able to borrow money to carry them over, but if this is hard on a land owner, what will become of the tenant who owns no land, and who has already had merchants to advance him money and provisions over the prospects of a once promising crop, which during the hail storm was fully 90 per cent. destroyed. Merchants, themselves, are hard struck and they could not, no matter how much they wish to, carry these farmers over from this season to the next. I think I am conservative when I estimate that the loss to this particular section will come up above the half million mark. (See report Commissioner E. J. Watson, South Carolina, 1914, pages 80 and 81).

An appeal was made for help and a relief committee raised several thousand dollars with which to purchase seed and supplies for distribution among the unfortunate losers. This is only one instance among many in the Southern States last year.

Do you think it would have been necessary to issue this appeal for assistance if these unfortunate people had provided themselves with portection against loss by hail?

What about the banks and supply merchants from whom many of these farmers had secured loans and supplies with which to make this crop? Would any of them have been embarrassed by reason of the losses resulting to their customers from this hail storm?

Now Gentlemen, the farmer looks to you for advice and assistance. You are the moulders of public opinion in the business world. Give this matter of hail insurance your careful thought and consideration, and if after a thorough investigation of the subject you are convinced that it is a good business proposition, advise your farmer friends and customers accordingly, and you will be fulfilling your mission in the business world, that of public benefactors and community builders.

In this time of industrial opportunity, it is gratifying to see what a firm grasp the men trained at the Agricultural and Mechanical College are taking on the industrial life of the State. These men not only know how to do things, but they are doing them with credit to themselves and to their college. They are making over old farms and dairies. Many of them are directing cotton mills. On our railways and highways you find them with transit and rod. They are sought by men who need draughtsmen and machinists. Young men who are ambitious and determined to make headway in life are in increasing numbers making their way to this busy institution. The fall announcement in this paper will interest scores of young men.

Cailfornia-Canadian Popularity Contest

Extra Announcement!

CONTEST TICKETS GOOD AT "THE ROYAL."

All tickets sold by contestants during the Popularity Contest will be honored both at the Bijou Theatre and at the Royal Theatre, now being built opposite the Postoffice, and which will open about Septembe 1st.

This is the only opportunity patrons will have of getting tickets which will be honored at both theatres, as after the close of the contest no tickets will be issued good for both the Bijou and the Royal.

Patrons may, therefore, stock up with sufficient tickets to last them at both theatres until January, 1916, and thus aid their favorite contestant to win the great trip. Buy a 85 book of tickets now and when the new theatre opens you can go to either or both shows with the same book of tickets.

The manager wishes to remind contestants that the next two weeks is the time during which the largest sales should be expected—to personal friends of the contestants. Therefore, no one should let an opportunity slip to sell tickets. Every day from now on is liable to show big changes in the respective standings of the contestants.

Make Daily Report

All contestants will be required to make daily reports beginning tomorrow. Contestants may vote every day, and the daily standing will be posted in lobby and shown on the screen every evening after seven o'clock.

PERMANENT ELEMENTS OF EDUCATION

By W. A. Harper,

President of Elon College.

It is the permanent elements of education that justify the vast expenditure of money for it and the enlistment of hundreds of thousands of teachers in its army of workers. More than 400 colleges and universities with more than 10,000 teachers and more than 400,000 students, with endowments aggregating more than a billion dollars, make up the higher educational budget of the United States. More than 18,000,000 pupils taught by more than half a million teachers receiving salaries out of the public exchequer aggregating more than $500,000,000 annually represent numerically the American people's interest in secondary education. And these expenditures in money and in human energy are increasing every year. It is because we have seen, or think we have, certain abiding elements in education that we are willing to invest men and money in it in such bewildering proportions. We have found, or think we have, that education pays well for every dollar invested in it and for every particle of neural force devoted to its acquisition. The American people sit at the feet of the pedagogue during the formative period of childhood and adolescence and far into that of early man and womanhood, as no other people ever have, and they do it because of the permanent elements they have seen in education.

Practical Information.

Among these permanent elements the practical American would place foremost, practical information, knowledge equipping directly for some vocation, skill contributing to wealth production and industrial success. We have departed far from the old notion that a gentleman should have no business. The American gentleman with no business is your tramp or jail-bird. We believe that work ennobles man and consider every loafer a parasite, whether he be rich or poor. Education ought to be practical and it ought to assist in achieving material success. It always has and it always will, or it will cease to be. In insisting on the practical benefits of education, however, there is involved the danger of stunting the finer sensibilities of the soul and reducing life to materialism only. We must all make our living—that is materialistic—and that living should be the best of which we are capable—that is crass materialism, and yet I believe in it. I would include in "best" however many things which the extreme materialist would rigorously exclude. I would not be content with muck-raking only; I would occasionally peep at the stars.

In our insistence on practical education we should put the emphasis on education, which is another name for man-development, rather than on practical. Man is the most important element in education, not practicability. You can never make a first-rate lawyer out of a man God has set aside to till the soil, and the best way to make him the most efficient farmer possible is to give him acquaintance with life in the large as well as with the practical, technical training required of the farmer. The best man is your broad, catholic, sympathetic man, and this holds true whether he be a farmer, a mechanic, or a professional man, and this type of man, the man who makes his living and at the same time lives his life, this type of man will help forward the life of every man who feels the impulse of his energy or even remotely is touched by his influence.

The narrow specialist, the man who has confined himself to one thing to the exclusion of everything else, who has seen in education only practical information and in life only his own vocation—that man may make his millions, may stand at the top of his profession, but his own life will be poor in the elements that really make living worth while—poor in the things that elevate human life above mere animal existence and brings it close to God. This is not decrying success. This is not decrying material success. It is pleading for man as the master of materialism as against man enslaved to his own acquisitions. And it is a plea that needs to be made. Short-sighted educationists, mad with desire for popularity, are enunciating in catching phrases the gospel of mammon and the mammonites are saying "amen and amen." They would eliminate from our schools all but practical studies and they would introduce vocational training everywhere possible. They would convert our schools into apprentice shops and put under the ban of disapproval every ideal save that of materialistic success. We need apprentice shops, but we need schools also. Our schools will quicken our ideals. Our apprentice shops will enable us to work out in material form these ideals. But if our schools become apprentice shops, where will our ideals be?

The advocates of vocational training and practical education as the only worthy aim of our educational system do not help their case when they cite the examples of foreign countries as justifying their reform. They forget that life in those countries is cast in certain moulds, and that there is very little, if any, transference from one stratum of society to another. Sons and daughters of the nobles will be nobles and the children of artisans will follow their forebears. Not so in America, where even the humblest can aim at the highest station. In the old country there is very little need for the quickening of ideals, but in America such quickening of ideals, is the secret of our glory and the destiny of our future. Yet even in the old countries, there exist two types of education—practical for the children of the poor and the artisans, and classical for the education of the professional and higher classes. We shall likely come to such arrangement in this country, but as between the vocational school only and the classical school only, there can be but one choice for a nation whose national greatness is dependent upon the ideals that stir the heart's blood of its every citizen.

And yet I am willing to grant that education should give practical information, that it should give special training, that it should yield expert skill for the work of life, but not to the exclusion of those studies which really enrich life and render it worth while. We need specialization and vocational training and practical education and we will have them, but in their getting let us not forget that idealism too is a potent factor in human progress, an even more potent factor than realism, which would not be and could not be without idealism as the fuel producing its energy. Let us put our emphasis on man and life first and on specialism and making a living next and in sweet self-forgetfulness realize our best selves and live our best lives. Education animated and controlled by such a spirit cannot but yield us the best results in terms of life and in point of practical information—not the information that narrows and belittles man, but that broadens and uplifts and exalts him.

Mental Power.

There can be no more inviting claim set forth for education's necessity than that it generates mental power, for it is to mental power that we must look as the source of human progress. From his eyes down no man is worth more than $1.50 a day. But he who is thoroughly developed from his eyes up may command a salary mounting up to startling proportions. Mental power—that is the difference; and that is the sort of power we have the right to expect from our educational system.

We have the right to inquire of any institution offering us its services or seeking our support what it can do in the matter of generating mental power. Does it propose to take the undeveloped human being and to make him into a man remarkable for his mental grasp? If so, it is entitled to our respect and should have our support. If it merely proposes to train him more deftly and skilfully as an animal, with little or no attention to mental power, then we should look elsewhere for education. There is a vital difference between skill and power. Skill enables us to utilize power, is the belting that transfers to power from the dynamo to the wheels and the machinery of the plant, but is powerless without the dynamo, the source of the power. We need to consider this carefully in deciding as between schools and colleges. Your special schools put the emphasis on skill; your colleges put it on power. Our normal schools train—they do not educate. They give skill—they do not give power. The normal school reviews carefully the ground covered by the grammar and high school curriculum. It adds to that methods of teaching and practice in teaching, but makes no advance in general education. Normal graduates for the first few months outshine in the class room the college graduates, because of their skill. They are limited in power, however, and their superiority is brief and momentary. As soon as experience gives the college graduate skill, her magnificent power places her in a different class as a teacher and she far outdistances her normal trained competitors. It is power that counts, not skill, because power will express itself and skill is its handmaid.

What has been said of teaching applies equally well to every other vocation. The other day I read the curriculum of a far-famed technical school—a curriculum that was designed to produce civil and electrical engineers. It had the smell of the shop. I could see almost nothing in it but machinery and the whirr of the wheels was almost audible as I read. Three courses in English, one in Political Economy, two in German or French, with technical mathematics and applied science and shop work—that was the curriculum offered as constituting an education, with no history and no philosophy and no acquaintance with the great literatures of the world and no real knowledge in the liberalizing sense of either English, mathematics, or natural or social science. Those who are thus "educated" may repair railroads and operate machinery, but they will never tunnel under the Hudson nor construct the Panama Canal nor invent any contrivance for the uplift of man. Your great engineers are they who have been thoroughly educated before their special training began, whose special training has been the belting and shafting by which their previously generated mental power and acumen were applied to the practical problems of their profession.

These principles apply to the farmer, to the business man, to the mechanic, to the minister, to the physician, to the lawyer, to every type of man. The narrow man must necessarily work in grooves. He is not broad enough to avoid the ruts. He is powerless to strike out along new lines, because he is limited in horizon, deficient in vision, and devoid of ideals. What does he know of England who only England knows? What does he know of medicine who only medicine knows? Such narrowness yields skill, but not power, and power makes the wheels of life go and keeps them from moving always in the same way.

The college course, following the proper sort of preparatory education, is able to develop this needful mental power. It enlarges the vision, quickens the ideals, strengthens every mental faculty—and these are the mainsprings of power in the mental realm. The college curriculum interprets the past, lays bare the present, and unfolds the future, thus laying a solid foundation for the understanding of life and the cultivation of the judgment. In History the student sees the passions of men at play under all circumstances. He is thus enabled to weigh the problems of life in a sure balance, and he who knows his history will not be easily lured into hurtful schemes of wild-cat reform. Language and literature enlarge his life by revealing to him the aims, ambitions and ideals of every conceivable type of man. His sympathies are thus quickened and he is better able to help his fellows to the light, basing his helpfulness on the enlarged experience in living offered all who ramble wisely in literature's paradise of charm. Social science gives him insight into the institutional life of man and qualifies him to understand the intricate problems of government and society. Natural science will show him nature and nature's God, and through this knowledge he will be prepared to turn natural forces into helpful channels of human uplift. Mathematics will not only teach him painstaking exactness in thinking, but will encourage him to expect definite results from definite forces in composition. The man who knows his higher mathematics—his calculus and his conic sections—will be no easy prey to schemers and charlatans with pet theories of great deliverance to man through insignificant social alterations. And philosophy, in which should be included ethics and Bible study, will bring him face to face with men's highest hopes and holiest aspirations, and no man who has felt his soul stir in the presence of these transcendent problems with their attendant hopes can be other than a new man for his experience. The man who has covered the gamut of life—past, present, future—as it is revealed in the college curriculum, becomes a man of power, of mental power. We may not be able to ferret out the physics or the chemistry or the biology of it, but we know that it is ever so. One day perhaps we shall understand the process of it, but such understanding is no more necessary to its acquisition and enjoyment than understanding of the manner of conversion is to the enjoyment of the Christian life. We know the college course gives this power and we know this power is necessary to the individual who is to lead the world to redemption, and we who are wise will never rest till we have it or till those dependant upon us for their outlook on life through our efforts have had it or have had opportunity to have it.

Processes of Work.

If college did no more for a man than cultivate correct habits of work and thought, it would on that score only be entitled to every man's respect and support. The regular recurrence of college duties may be inconvenient at times, but so are the duties of the work-a-day world. The punctual performance of these duties will tell wonderfully in after years, when the stress and the storm of life's obligations gather thick and fast about us. Every college man has in his vocational duties after graduation had occasion to feel grateful to the routine exacted by the rules and regulations of his college days. He may have found them interfering with his pleasures and desires at times and he may have yielded a half-hearted obedience, when he was under obligation to attend

HAD PELLAGRA; IS NOW CURED

Hillsboro, Ala.—J. W. Turner, of this place, says: "I ought to have written you two weeks ago, but failed to do so. I got well and then forgot to write you. I can get about like a 10-year-old boy; you ought to see me run around and tend to my farm. I can go all day just like I used to. I am so thankful to know there is such a good remedy to cure people of pellagra."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucus and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., box 2097, Jasper, Ala., remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure.—Adv't.

PARISIAN SAGE

Men and women whose hair and scalp are excessively oily suffer more in the warmer months than at any other time. The summer's dust and dirt mingle with dandruff, cling to the oily hair and scalp, clog the scalp pores, stifle the hair roots and make proper cleansing almost impossible.

Parisian Sage is an ideal treatment for this trouble. Wash the hair not oftener than once a week, but use Parisian Sage twice daily, pouring a little into the parted hair and rubbing briskly right into the scalp with the finger tips. It drives out dandruff, dissolves the excess oil and stimulates the scalp into healthy normal action. Sold by R. R. Bellamy and leading druggists everywhere.

PARKER, N. C., MAN GETS QUICK RELIEF

W. R. Davenport Better After First Dose of Remedy.

W. R. Davenport of Parker, N. C., long suffered from a peculiar malady of the stomach. He sought treatment with but little relief. At times it seemed that he would have to give up hope.

He took Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and found immediate benefit. He wrote:

"For years I have suffered from a disease which puzzled doctors. They termed it catarrh of the stomach, saying the only hope would be a change of climate, and that in all probability I would never get well. Then I heard of your remedy. One bottle gave me instant relief. It made me feel like a new man. Your full course of treatments has about cured me. Several of my friends have also been cured."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned.

(2). "All that certain line of lumber tram-way beginning [illegible] Junction, Cutheast branch of the Cape Fear River at or near Bannerman's Bridge, and running generally eastwardly therefrom in Pender [illegible] Duplin county consisting of about thirty-five and sixty-one [illegible] (35.60) miles of twenty-five (25) pound and thirty (30) pound [illegible] two miles of Twenty (20) pound iron rail, including all the [illegible] way either on the main line or branches thereof, all iron rails laid [illegible] those on the main lines or branches thereof, all switches, cross-ties, bolts, fish plates, spikes, and road-way; also including all the railroad rights of way, cross-ties, iron rails, laid or loose, and all other material heretofore connected with the tram-way of the Holly Shelter Railroad Company, or belonging to said railroad company, and all other material pertaining to either and all of the said tram-ways; also fifty-seven (57) kegs of rails and spikes, eleven (11) kegs of railroad bolts and five hundred and sixty (560) pairs of railroad fish plates; also two ordinary locomotives, one big locomotive, in all three locomotives, two Parker skidders, pumps and water tanks and forty (40) logging cars; all of which said material is located in one or the other of said counties of Pender or Duplin, being the same conveyed by the said Cape Fear Lumber Company to the said party of the first part, by bill of sale dated 6th day of January, 1910, and intended to be recorded in said counties with this mortgage."

The above description covers such property described as was owned by Frank Buell on the 6th day of January, 1910, and will be pointed out to the purchaser on the day of the sale.

(3). All those twenty-nine tracts of timber including rights of way, timber rights and other privileges, described in a certain mortgage deed from Frank Buell to the Cape Fear Lumber Company, of date January 6th, 1910, and recorded in book 65 page 367 of the records of Pender County, and also described in a deed from Frank Buell to the Buell-Crocker Lumber Company of date January 16th, 1910, by deed recorded in book 72, at page 343, of the Records of Pender County, which is referred to for a more definite description.

(4). Sixteen logging cars purchased from the Smith Kilby Company, now owned by the Buell-Crocker Lumber Company, and any and all other railroad or logging equipment not specified in Article (2) above.

(5). All the mules now owned by the party of the first part, there being fourteen of them; also nine lighters marked "BCL" and numbered one to nine, inclusive, the said nine lighters being all the lighters owned by the party of the first part, also one tug boat named "W. T. Riggan". The said lighters and boat will be offered for sale singly and as a whole and the bids reported to the court for confirmation."

(6). One locomotive purchased from H. K. Porter & Company, of Pittsburg, Pa., during the month of September, 1914, which is practically new and in good condition.

(7). All other personal property of every kind and description not included in the above description, which is now owned by the Buell-Crocker Lumber Company and located in Pender County, North Carolina, at or near Bannerman's Bridge, including tools, office furniture and all other personal property of every kind and description.

(8). All standing timber of every kind and description now located on the Morgan Lee Tract of land and yet uncut, and which was purchased by the Buell-Crocker Lumber Company from J. R. Marshburn and others.

TERMS OF SALE.

The above described property will be offered for sale in separate lots as above indicated, and then the entire property above described will be offered for sale in solido; the respective bids will be reported to the Court and the sale is made subject to the confirmation by the court. Purchasers will be required to deposit with the receivers on the day of the said sale cash or its equivalent in the amount of ten per cent of their respective bids as a guarantee of their good faith, said amount to be forfeited in the event the purchaser should fail and refuse to comply with the purchase; and on confirmation of said sale by the court the balance due on said purchase price to be paid in cash.

GEO. O. GAYLORD'S
CLEARANCE SALE

Is being quite a success. The full page ads. in nine country papers have made it well known throughout the country and the bargains that are offered in printers' ink has been substantiated by producing the goods.

There are a great many things reduced 50 per cent, some things 33 1-3 per cent. Almost everything reduced. We are selling good yard-wide bleaching 5c a yard, 10 yards to a customer. We have forty styles of different kinds of shoes that we have cut the price on largely. We are selling $1.25 and $1.50 shoes for 84c. $1.75 Boys' Shoes selling for $1.00. $1.25 Ladies' Slippers 79c.

In the Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Department we are making big sales—the price has been reduced in everything and we have made quite a success in the number of sales made. A satisfied customer is the best proof. We save you money and sell you what you want. A pile of white skirts going at 69c. Less than one-third their value. Ladies' Panama Suits that sold for $8.98—brand new goods, selling for $7.48. About 15 dozen Ladies' new and pretty Waists, worth 98c, are being sold at 69c.

In the Millinery Department the store looks like Easter season. We are showing new hats, flowers and ribbons.

Fifty pieces new Calicoes going at 4 1-2c a yard; 400 yards of good Dress Ginghams selling at 4 1-2c a yard; 3,000 yards of Cheviots, a good 10c quality in the best goods for 8 1-3c a yard—special.

Men's Seasucker Suits—the coolest things yet, at $2.65 a suit. Men's Silk Socks, regular 25c goods, three pairs for a half dollar.

Ladies' Dress Goods and Wash Fabrics, the new things that are being worn, on sale at low prices. Thirty pieces of Silk on sale at 19c a yard. We spent money advertising this sale, and so far as the profit goes we don't expect to make a cent. But are selling lots of goods for the Cash. Goods are cheap and we want to unload them. The store will be closed Monday, but the sale lasts until the 13th, and new goods and new bargains will be added every day. Remember the place.

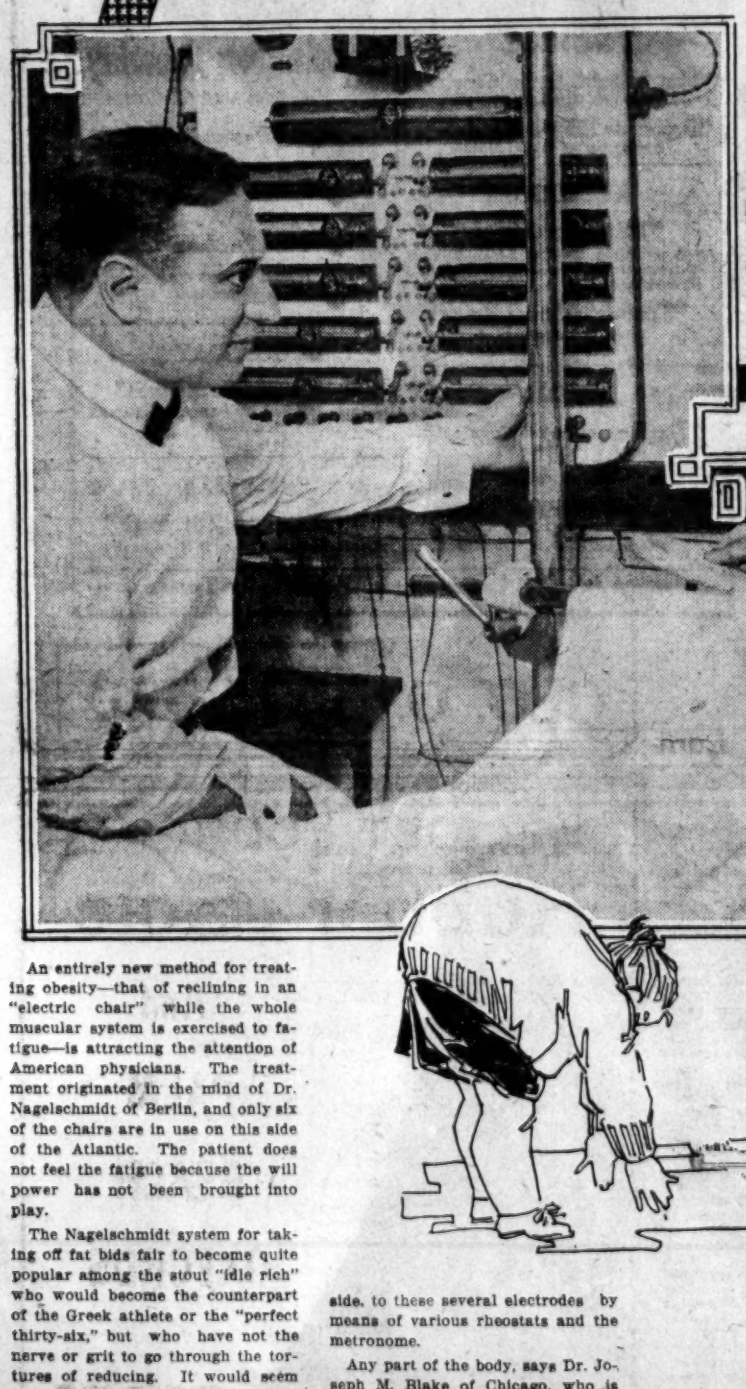
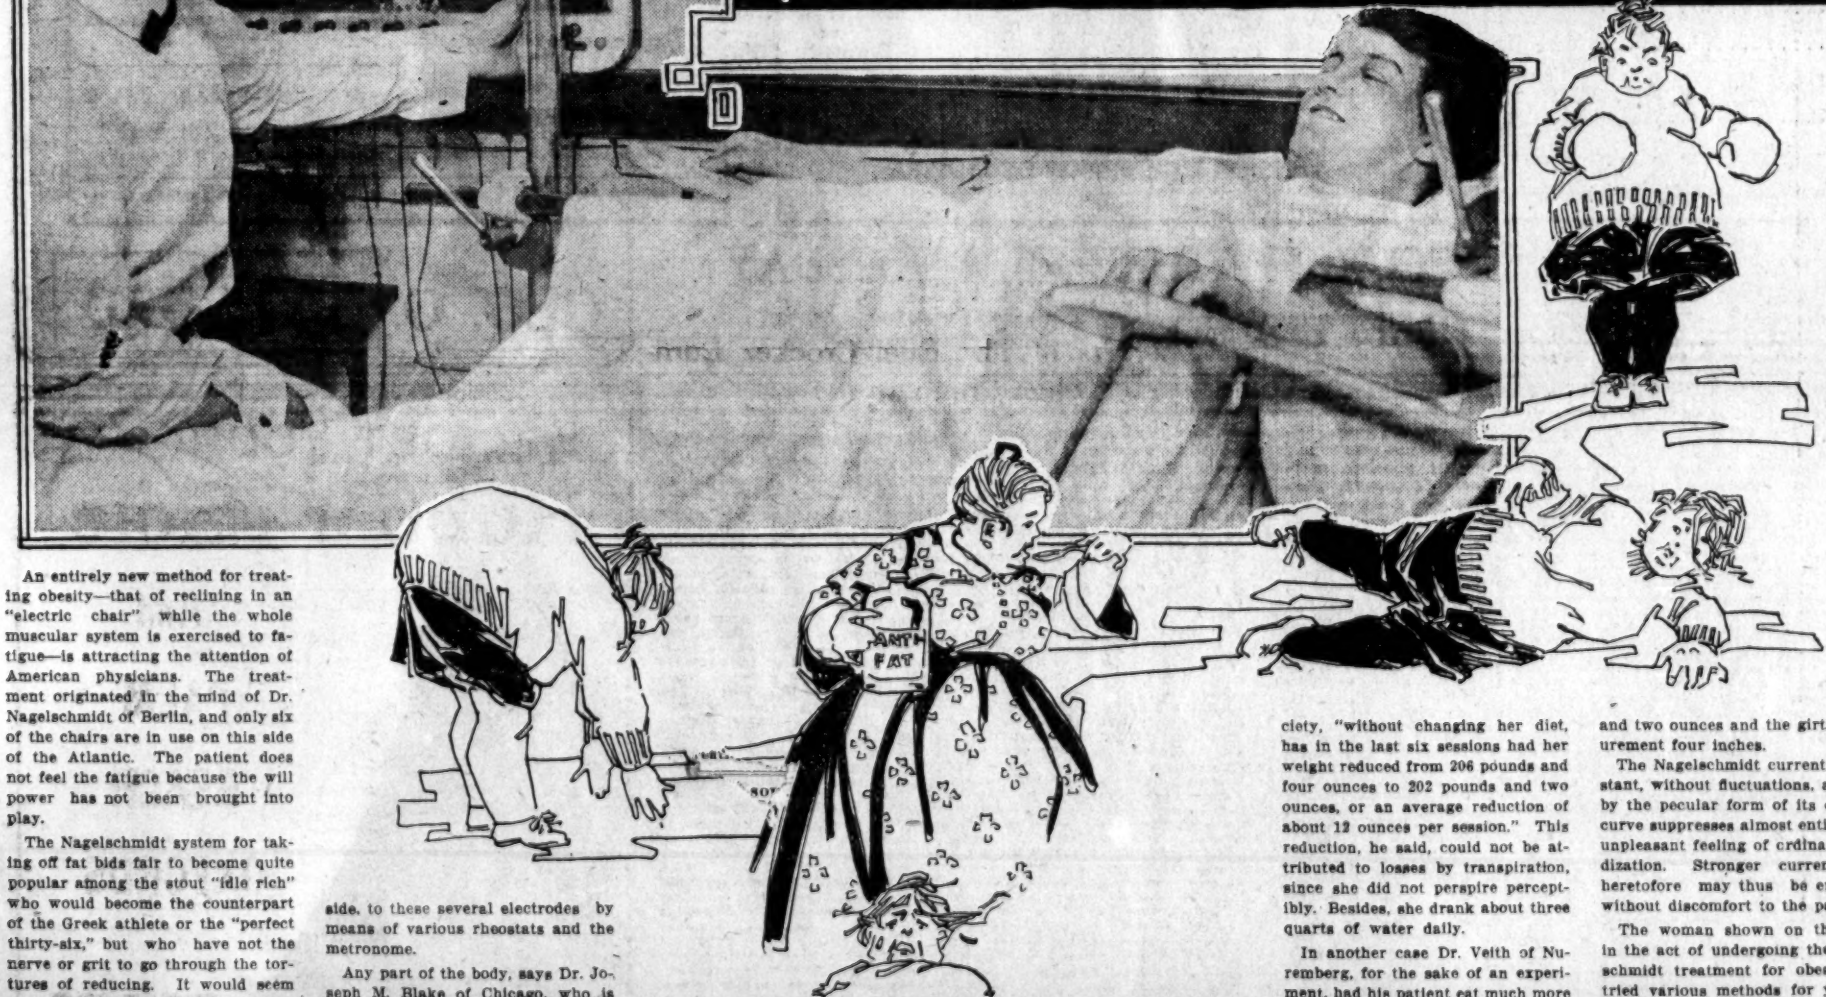
Reducing in an Easy Chair

By Means Of a Newly Discovered Electric Treatment, Obesity and Its Attendant Ills Can Be Eradicated Without Using the Starvation Method





An entirely new method for treating obesity—that of reclining in an "electric chair" while the whole muscular system is exercised to fatigue—is attracting the attention of American physicians. The treatment originated in the mind of Dr. Nagelschmidt of Berlin, and only six of the chairs are in use on this side of the Atlantic. The patient does not feel the fatigue because the will power has not been brought into play.

The Nagelschmidt system for taking off fat bids fair to become quite popular among the stout "idle rich" who would become the counterpart of the Greek athlete or the "perfect thirty-six," but who have not the nerve or grit to go through the tortures of reducing. It would seem more pleasant to take an afternoon nap in a Nagelschmidt chair than to chase around golf links or go through the physical tortures of a gymnasium—and then only with uncertain results.

The treatment consists of a series of twenty-five sessions, covering a period of four weeks. In the great majority of cases, say physicians who are using the chair, the one series has produced the desired effect. When a second series is necessary a period of from one to four weeks is allowed to elapse between the two. Physicians using the Nagelschmidt system contend it is the only logical cure for excess weight. With a majority of the muscles of the body contracting sixty times per minute, or 3,600 times per session, they say it stands to reason that a great amount of muscular work is being done, which necessarily results in a correspondingly increased metabolism.

STRENUOUS WORK MADE EASY.

The Nagelschmidt chair is inclined to a comfortable position, and is fitted with very large contact surfaces insulated from each other. It is equipped with electrodes which fit the curves of the body perfectly, and a switchboard distributes the peculiar current, produced by the motor interrupter located at the side, to these several electrodes by means of various rheostats and the metronome.

Any part of the body, says Dr. Joseph M. Blake of Chicago, who is using one of the chairs, can be treated and reduced, while the balance of the system remains unaffected.

After placing the patient on the fat-reducing chair the current is passed through in the desired direction. All the muscles of the body, so far as they are included in the circuit, are contracted regularly with great energy. At each contraction the lower trunk muscles may raise weights of from forty to fifty pounds besides their own weight.

All the muscles appear to be engaged in strenuous work—a thing which the patient would not be able to accomplish by voluntary exertion without the most profound fatigue. If the apparatus is adjusted properly, according to its maker, there will be after the session not only no fatigue but the patient will even observe an increased desire for physical exercise.

The patient should not be subjected at the very beginning to a full hour's treatment with maximum energy, says Dr. Nagelschmidt, but during the first few sessions the available muscular energy should be carefully estimated, and, beginning with fifteen-minute sessions, the normal session, length of sixty minutes, should be attained gradually. In some extreme cases, in which the fat is present in unusual quantities, it may be necessary to start the patient with two treatments a day, one morning and evening.

The regular treatment consists of a series of twenty-five sessions, covering a period of four weeks. In the great majority of cases, say physicians who are using the chair, the one series has produced the desired effect. When a second series is necessary a period of from one to four weeks is allowed to elapse between the two.

LOSE FAT, GAIN STRENGTH.

Because, as they say, it reduces fat as well as develops the muscles, and at the same time does not cause mind fatigue or a strain on the heart, those physicians using the Nagelschmidt system contend it is the only logical cure for excess weight. With a majority of the muscles of the body contracting sixty times per minute, or 3,600 times per session, they say it stands to reason that a great amount of muscular work is being done, which necessarily results in a correspondingly increased metabolism.

Thus, "the female patient before you," said Dr. Nagelschmidt in a lecture before the Berlin Medical Society, "without changing her diet, has in the last six sessions had her weight reduced from 206 pounds and four ounces to 202 pounds and two ounces, or an average reduction of about 12 ounces per session." This reduction, he said, could not be attributed to losses by transpiration, since she did not perspire perceptibly. Besides, she drank about three quarts of water daily.

In another case Dr. Veith of Nuremberg, for the sake of an experiment, had his patient eat much more than he was accustomed to after the treatment, and yet three weeks later no increase in weight had taken place. Dr. Veith adds: "I have ascertained, as the result of a single session, an average loss of weight amounting to from six to thirteen ounces, although at some sessions a reduction of over two pounds was obtained, and can show a reduction of weight up to thirty-one pounds in six weeks."

Drs. Bergonie, Nagelschmidt and Veith all report efficient fat-reducing treatment without observing any special diet, but add that where a suitable diet was combined with the treatments the weight reduction was far greater.

All operators agree that the weight reduction becomes less at the later sessions. It should be borne in mind, they say, that the loss of weight ascertainable by weighing is smaller than the amount of fat removed, since new muscle tissue has also been formed. This, they contend, is shown by the fact that very often, while the loss in weight may be comparatively small, the clothing will become very loose-fitting. For instance, in a typical case, after three sessions there was a loss in weight of a little more than two pounds and a reduction in girth of three and one-half inches. In another case, after six sessions, the weight was reduced three pounds and two ounces and the girth measurement four inches.

The Nagelschmidt current is constant, without fluctuations, and also by the pecular form of its current-curve suppresses almost entirely the unpleasant feeling of ordinary faradization. Stronger currents than heretofore may thus be employed without discomfort to the patient.

The woman shown on this page in the act of undergoing the Nagelschmidt treatment for obesity had tried various methods for years in an effort to "get back to normal," as she put it.

"I first tried the method of rolling on the floor," she declared, "but found this irksome. Then I turned my attention to physical culture. Pulling weights, punching the bag, brisk walks and runs—yes, and many other things that were actually torture for me—failed to bring the desired effect.

NO WILL POWER NEEDED.

"Next I tried dieting. My intentions were the very best, but after a few days my will power ceased to stand by me in the crisis. Little by little I went back to eating the food I knew would keep me fat.

"Now I am reducing in weight without exercising my will power in the least, and without the tortures of physical culture or the discomfiture of dieting. Really, I look forward to a treatment with pleasure. I can recline easily and comfortably in the 'electric chair,' and, if I care to, read a book or newspaper while I lose weight. Or I can lay back and plan my shopping trip or a hundred other things.

"After exercising in a gymnasium I always felt weak and tired. Not so now. I get out of the chair feeling refreshed—even more so than before I take the treatment. It is wonderful."

Rockefeller's Gifts

John D. Rockefeller, Sr., gave away for benevolent purposes $5.95 a minute during 1914. People who ought to know estimate his income at $50 a minute.

The Rockefeller Foundation, to which Mr. Rockefeller gave $100,000,000 of stocks and bonds on March 6 last, gave money for benevolent purposes at the rate of $5.87 for the same period. The Foundation's income for the year was $10.46 a minute.

The gross amount of Mr. Rockefeller's giving was $3,128,650, which was distributed in fifty-six contributions. In twenty-five gifts the Foundation disposed of $3,075,218. These figures appear in a report to the United States commission on industrial relations which the Foundation made public yesterday. In this report it is said:

"The Foundation has, up to January 1, 1915, made disbursements for its own work and the activities conducted under its own immediate supervision as follows:

Food supplies for Belgium, $975,707.93.

Stipends for Belgian professors to continue scientific studies in England, $5,000.

Administrative expenses, $8,905.13.

For musical supplies and research connected with the war, $20,000.

Hookworm work in Central America, British Guiana, British West Indies and Egypt, $142,467.76.

Medical work in China, $39,270.92.

Purchase bird refuge in Louisiana, $223,574.77.

Total, $1,420,218.64.

"The following is a complete list of the other gifts and pledges made by the Foundation since its establishment and up to February 1, 1915:

American Academy in Rome, $100,000.

Red Cross, for relief of suffering in Bulgaria, $10,000.

To relief society for the calamities in northeastrn districts of Japan, $10,900.

For carrying out program of coordination in work of principal American mission boards, $450,000.

Bureau of Municipal Research, $30,000.

To American Association for Conservation of Vision toward budget of New York Committee for the Prevention of Blindness, $25,000.

Wellesley college, $750,000.

For sending Red Cross physicians and nurses to Europe, $10,000.

To Dr. Alexis Carrel for use under his direction for relief of sick and wounded during war in Europe, $10,000.

PERMANENT ELEMENTS OF EDUCATION

class rather than witness a great athletic contest in a nearby city, but in his maturer years when the self-discipline thus achieved has brought him the needful resolution for sticking to his duties in the face of discouragement or inviting pleasure, his mind will revert to the old scenes and gratitude will well up within him for lasting benefits received.

But it may be objected that such discipline can be had in a store or a factory or the army. In a sense this is true, but with a vital difference. In a store or a factory or the army, the duties are prescribed and the "boss" under whatever title enforces strict adherence thereto or discharges the refractory employe. There is not much opportunity for the display of the will power in making choice between duties that may be neglected and pleasures that bid for indulgence. No such seminary for the development of the will has ever been devised as the small college, where parental care is showered over all and where duties and pleasures involving the will's cultivation and development are plenteously supplied. To this benign opportunity for strengthening the will through exercise the vocations of daily life can offer no parallel.

But far more valuable than the inculcation of correct habits of work and thought is the acquaintance the college course gives with the field of universal knowledge and the processes of attacking the problems that demand solution at our hands. It is not required that a man shall remember all he learns during his college days in order to profit by his study. He may forget all the Latin and Greek he ever knew and not be able to demonstrate a single proposition in geometry nor perform a single experiment in science. He may not be able to recall the facts of history nor the schools of philosophy, and yet have in the mastery of these items of forgotten lore acquired such insight into the methods of attacking difficult problems that he is qualified for leadership in the affairs of life, and where other men falter and ultimately go down in the fierce onslaught, he calmly and serenely and self-confidently because of rare insight into the processes of grappling with difficult situations goes on to rich and satisfying achievement. Let the college man who shrinks from the tangled maze of his daily allotment of Greek or Latin or higher mathematics content himself with the sweet thought that in their mastery he is destined to discover the golden threads of the most effective processes of work—a discovery that shall give him a tremendous lead in the race of life. And further let him consider that his wide acquaintance with truth as the college course opens it up to him will stand him in good stead in coming days and enable him with little effort to keep himself informed or to inform himself as to any matter involving expert skill in investigation. The training of the will through manifold moral decisions, the inculcation of correct habits of work and thought, the insight into the effective processes of grappling with difficult situations, and the possession of a wide range of knowledge connected with the ability to investigate for himself any particular realm of it—these are priceless boons of college education and happy is the man who fortunately is possessed of them.

General Culture.

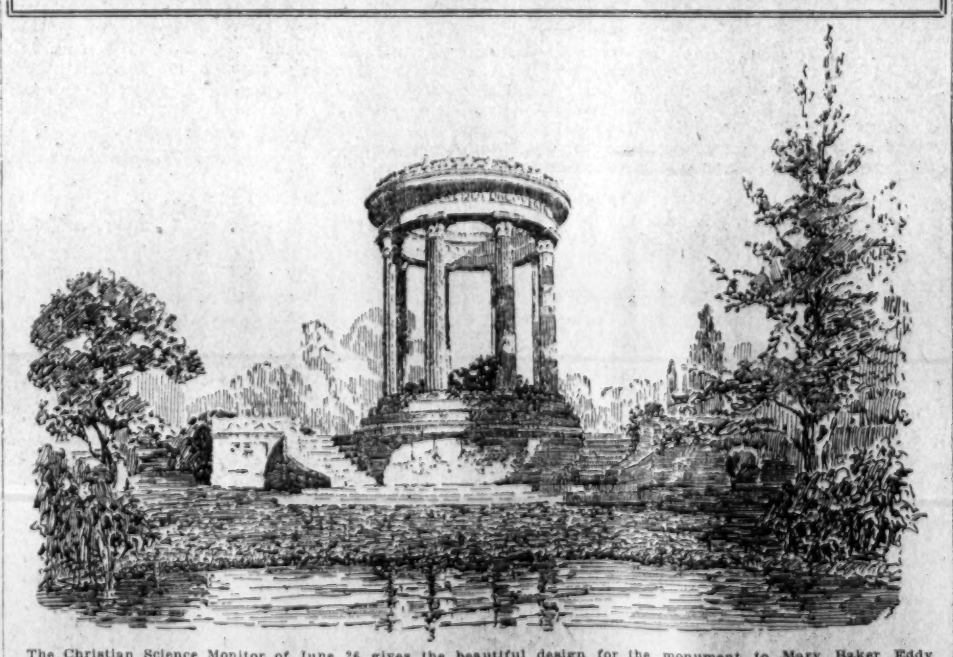
Note that I did not say polish, but culture. Polish is put on from the outside. It is a veneer and its thinness is easily discernible by all. But culture. They really teach polish—not come off because it is not put on. There are schools which essay to teach culture. hTey really teach polish—what might perhaps be dubbed culturine—and their product is distasteful to all who really know what true culture is. The graduates of such schools know the latest styles of dress and the names of the newest indigestible viands and the tricks of entertaining and are past masters in idleness and frivolity. They are experts at playing bridge, but veriest ignoramuses at playing Briquet. If they are possessed of culture, the less we have of it the better.

The culture for which I plead is that which Matthew Arnold described as acquaintance with the best that has been thought, said, and done in man's history. Such acquaintance gives dignity, gives charm, gives worth to its possessor. Such a person is refined, genuinely refined, because his refinement is the out-cropping of his soul and not the habiliment of a groom. He is cultured, genuinely cultured, because high thinking always takes practical form in culture that cannot fail—a culture as high above that which comes of fashionable living as a real man is above his pampered horse or a real woman is above her fondled poodle. The man or woman of culture is at home in the kitchen or the workshop, in the parlor, in society, in educated circles, among the unlearned, amid wealth or poverty, everywhere or anywhere and at any time. His culture does not puff him up, but makes him the servant of all his fellows, and wherever there is a human need to be satisfied he has found his friend and neighbor. Such culture comes unconsciously, as a by-product. It comes without being sought for, but when it has come, what a richness, what a joy, what a halo of glory it lends the life of its possessor and of every one with whom he comes in contact! And nothing else can yield it so sweetly as the college course.

Christian Character.

But the crowning contribution of education to life-equipment is Christian character. Nothing else can take its place. And the education which fails in this respect has failed beyond redemption. It becomes the enemy of progress and should be cast into outer darkness. A man without character, without Christian character, is a danger to our civilization, and the better he is educated the greater menace he becomes to our free institutions. We want education, and we will have it; but we want education based on Christian character even more, and we are determined to have it. We will not permit any maudlin sentimentality in regard to the necessity of free-thought to rob us of the most vital element in any education—character and the God that makes character possible. We believe in the right of every individual to choose his own religious faith, but we also believe that the educational system should make it easy, not hard, for him to have a faith at all. Freedom of thought is not synonymous with skepticism and infidelity and if it is, we will have no more freedom of thought. The American people have issued their ultimatum to this fetish of a deluded age. They have said to it: "you shall not crucify the most priceless possession of life, Christian character, on your cross of free-thought.. Christian character has been our nations' bulwark in all our generations. It has brought us to leadership in national and private life. It has been our pillar of cloud by day and our pillar of fire by night. It is to us evidence that the God of our fathers is with us yet, and you shall not sacrifice this glorious heritage on your altar of free-thought. If your education cannot give us as its crowning work the sweet fruitage and exquisite charm of Christian character, then we will dwell with the Lord in the tents of the untutored and the unlearned!" So say the American people and from this pronouncement they will never recede.

MONUMENT TO MRS. MA RY BAKER EDDY TO BE ERECTED



The Christian Science Monitor of June 26 gives the beautiful design for the monument to Mary Baker Eddy soon to be erected in Mount Auburn cemetery.

It is from the accepted design of Mr. Edgerton Swartwont, of New York City. The monument including fund for maintenance is estimated to cost $110,000, $75,604.43 of this amount has been lovingly and voluntarily contributed. Mr. Swartwont is one of the best known architects of the day. He designed the George Washington memorial for Washington, the new Missouri state capitol, the new federal building in Denver Col., and many other important works.

"Getting there is one thing. Getting there without trouble is another. If you want to avoid trouble on the journey go on Diamond Squeegee Tread Tires."
—Mister Squeegee

Some people think the importance of their work is gauged by the noise they make.

Other men do big things without bluster or ostentatious effort.

If the noise he makes over it were the true measure of the importance of a man's work, Grant and Dewey would have been dismal failures.

Diamond Squeegee Tread Tires are going right along about their business, giving wonderful road service and justifying the widespread faith in them, without making it necessary to keep up a constant commotion regarding their merits.

If you wish to know how to secure mileage economy and freedom from tire troubles just ask anybody who is using Diamonds. You will not have to look far.

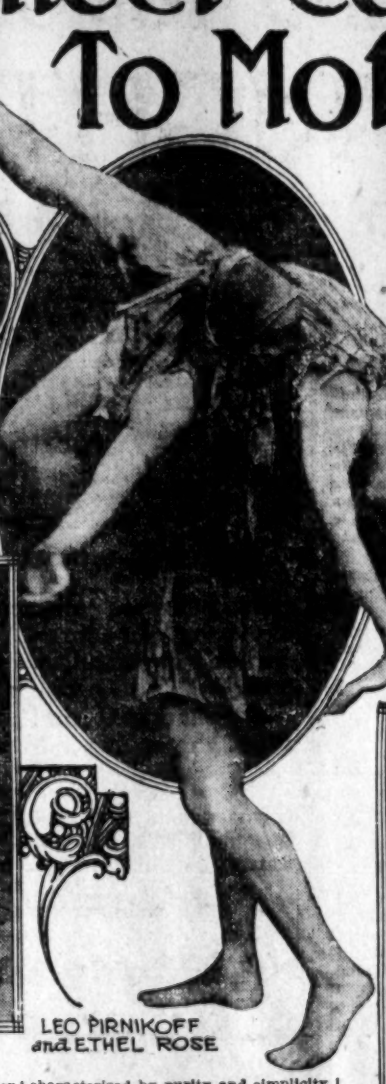
Titled Classic Dancer Capitulates To Motion Pictures

BARONESS ROTTENTHAL

THE CAMERON GIRLS



LEO PIRNIKOFF and ETHEL ROSE

Scenes from "MIDNIGHT AT MAXIM'S"

TIME was, and that not so long ago, when there was attached to the mere mention of the words "motion pictures" at least the suspicion of opprobrium. Presented as an inexpensive form of amusement motion pictures made their first tremendous appeal to the masses, and inevitably the classes made an effort to hold aloof. Today theaters of the most expensive construction are devoted to animated photography, millions of dollars of capital and some of the best brains in the country are devoted to the production of the silently visualized drama, Broadway favorites are delighting to register their emotions before the camera, and limousines are hauling men and women of wealth and distinction to the picture theaters for hours of entertaining and instructive amusement which the public could secure in no other manner quite so agreeably as through the medium of the projector and the screen. Magazines and newspapers the world over are devoting columns of space to the motion picture industry because animated photography, or the photo play—which, in the last analysis, still remains a "motion picture"—has become more firmly established in popular favor than any form of entertainment ever devised.

Of particular interest in the development of the industry which now ranks third among the industries of the world in point of money invested has been the changing attitude of representative artistes whose ideas of "high art" originally made them look upon motion pictures as far beneath them. Today the dignity of the photo play is established. Today from Bernhardt down artistes of international reputation are not only willing, but anxious to trust their best efforts before the camera.

In the very near future the American theater going public will be given the opportunity of witnessing a particularly pretentious screen portrayal which is in itself the proof conclusive that "high art" has capitulated—capitulated, that is, if there ever existed any reasonable argument to the effect that the art of a Bernhardt, with a limited appeal, was greater than the art of any conscientious director of motion pictures with an appeal as broad as the world is wide and as long as time runs on. The picture in question carries the title "Midnight at Maxim's," and the "capitulation" in it is seen in the fact that an artiste of no less importance than the Baroness Imgard von Rottenthal, internationally known among people of the highest culture, has enthusiastically contributed her best efforts to make is a success.

The Baroness Rottenthal is a member of the Austrian nobility by birth, her father having been the Baron Yusef von Rottenthal, now dead, but during his lifetime a well known figure in Austrian military circles and quite close to the king of his allegiance. For years she has occupied an enviable position among the exponents of classic dancing, both in this country and abroad, an artiste so situated that she has been able to devote her life to the realization of an ideal, an artiste who has been able to keep herself absolutely free from the smirch of commercialism, an artiste whose appearance in motion pictures needs no other justification than her freely given expression of opinion that the development of cinematography has afforded her an opportunity to pass along more rapidly and more surely the beauties of rhythmic motion which she has been striving for years to develop.

The Baroness Rottenthal is most widely known in this country by reason of her work in the homes of the best society people in such cities as New York Chicago and San Francisco. Her dances have been the star attraction at many brilliant affairs given in the homes of Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, Mrs. Taylor Pyne, Judge Elbert H. Gary, Mrs. Benjamin Guinness and Prince Troubetzkoy in New York city and in the show homes of Newport, including that of Mrs. Mitchell Clark. In addition to a number of similar engagements in Chicago, during a period of three or four years, the baroness appeared as an attraction extraordinary with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, founded by the late Theodore Thomas, now under the direction of Frederick Stock. This engagement, which attracted the best people in the Windy City, was for fourteen evenings at beautiful Ravinia park.

In many respects the Baroness Rottenthal is one of the most interesting figures in the world of art today. In no sense of the word is she an imitator. In spite of many temptations she has persistently refused to give up her ideals. Although wedded to the art of interpretative dancing, she has found no justification for the popular practice of appearing in public in a state of nudity which, though possibly justified by the subject matter of the dances, is more calculated to appeal to those in search of a "thrill" than to those with an eye for art for art's sake. Her creations throughout have been characterized by purity and simplicity. Her costumes, which she designs and often executes herself, are as surely studies in art as are the rhythmic motions with which she interprets the compositions of the great masters, but yet they are made subservient, not overshadowing, to the more important art of dancing. The baroness, too, has steadfastly refused to pander to the popular demand as expressed in the vogue of the modern dances despite the fact that her peculiar abilities would have made it possible for her to achieve distinction in this line of work.

As her contributions to "Midnight At Maxim's," which has won her to the world of the photo play, the baroness has executed two of her most popular classic dances, the first entitled "Sea Mist" and the second "Snow Flurry." She appears as the stellar attraction in the realistic representation of a characteristic New York city cabaret entertainment in which are also enlisted the services of carefully chosen beauties from such nationally known "Broadway palaces" as Rector's, Bustanoby's and Maxim's.

Her dances before the camera were done on a mammoth outdoor stage at Woodside, N. J., to the accompaniment of a full symphony orchestra, and it was in discussing this incident of her work in motion pictures that the baroness waxed most enthusiastic in her praise of the new line of endeavor to which she has been converted. "Although I have been dancing for years, and in public ever since I had turned fifteen," she said, "the glamour of stage life has never appealed to me. Indeed, I have done practically no stage work in the generally accepted sense of the term, having entertained at society functions in this country and abroad and in conjunction with big musical organizations. The little annoyances which I have always felt would hamper my work were I to follow a stage career I found very agreeably absent when I consented to dance before the camera, and, indeed, I was greatly surprised to find the 'tone' of the motion picture work so high.

"I am enthusiastic over the possibilities of animated photography not only for myself, but also for others who have taken their work, even though it be classic dancing, as seriously as I have taken it. I think the public will concede that the rhythmic interpretation of the spirit of the old masters depends for its success upon something within, rather than without, the artiste. If this is true, then, the lack of an applauding audience is rather a help than a hindrance, and there is consequently no reason why any classic dancer should not do her very best work before the motion picture camera, to be enjoyed more widely on the screen than it could possibly be enjoyed in any other way.

"I have been gratified, too, and made more confident that there is a great future for dancers in motion pictures by the care which has been exercised by those producing 'Midnight In Maxim's.' The arrangement, you know, embodies the identical selections which the orchestra played the afternoon I did my dances before the camera, with tempos fitted to the pictures of the dances as they appear on the screen. When I first saw the picture, with its musical accompaniment, it was easy for me to forget that the figure before my eyes was not flesh and blood-and to drink in the spirit of the dances.

"I liked the outdoor feature of the work, too, and I hope that some day I will be given the opportunity—which only motion pictures make possible—to do some of my dances in those pretty fairy dells and majestic forests which are too often burlesqued in ordinary stage settings."

The Baroness Rottenthal has always been an enthusiastic contributor of her talents for charity. For a long time it has been her rule to appear at least once each year—about Christmas time—for the benefit of some deserving charity. These appearances during the past few years have been in the larger cities of the country—not only in New York—and her return to these cities, where she is loved for her art and devotion to the cause of humanity, even on the picture screen, will be welcomed.

THEATRICAL

Manager Peck of the Grand theatre announces for tomorrow another Paramount picture featuring Mr. John Barrymore under the personal direction of Daniel Frohman in a five-act comedy success "The Man From Mexico" This famous comedy has been produced on the stage in almost every city throughout the country, and everywhere won phenomenal success and popularity, and the combination of star and play will be certain to appeal to every type of motion picture follower. "The Man From Mexico" while too well known to require a detailed description, is based on a mythical trip to Mexico by the hero, who is really incarcerated in the penitentiary for 30 days, and who offers his wife the excuse that he is going to Mexico for a month to explain his absence for that time, when he returns he is met with a number of perplexing situations. He discovers that his wife has learned to speak Spanish, has mastered the Mexican dances, has become thoroughly familiar with the customs of Mexico. Picture if you can what a great scope is offered to Mr. Barrymore, the inimitable comedian that he is, Mr. Barrymore is ably supported by a carefully chosen cast, and it is safe to predict that the last reel of the production will leave the audience fairly exhausted with laughter.

As an added feature Billy Reeves, that famous London music hall comedian will be seen in a one-reel comedy 'Out for a Stroll" in which he plays the part of "Happy Bill" all dressed up and nowhere to go, he does a little flirting with terrible Mike's wife, the champion wrestler of the world, and is progressing beautifully when the wrestler appears and threateningly claims his wife. In a spirit of revenge Bill goes to the hall where Mike is wrestling. All his opponents having been thrown, the champion issues a call for any member of the audience to meet him, with an offer of $500 to anyone who can stay five minutes. The wrestling match is done in Billie Reeves' best manner and the spectator who can see the picture without going through a laughter storm deserves pity, not censure. The admission for this Paramount day is children 5 cents, adults 10 cents. Come and be convinced that the Grand management is offering the best that money can buy.

Warren Kerrigan at The Bijou.

For the holiday occasion tomorrow the Bijou theatre has booked indeed a splendid bill of features. The notable feature is the return of Warren Kerrigan, that great Universal Star, who has recently recovered from a severe spell of sickness and presents his first big feature today.

"The Oyster Dredger" gives Kerrigan ample opportunity for some of his very greatest acting. Everybody loves handsome "Warry" and in this clever play he has a novel dual role. First as a poor picturesque oyster dredger, then as a young man of wealth and fashion. All the boys will envy him in this play and all the girls will adore him. Last but not least, he is supported, as usual, by pretty Vera Sisson, said to be the most envied girl in the movies. Handsome Kerrigan could not do his best work were he deprived of his pretty leading lady, he says, and they are undoubtedly the most popular and well known couple on the screen.

"The Second Beginning" is the title of a great single reel drama, a Big-U. brand that tells a novel and thoroughly interesting story full of swift action and thrills.

Popular Eddie Lyons and Victoria Forde are seen at their very highest in the art of fun making in "The Downfall of Potts" a roaring Nestor comedy that also occupies an important part on Monday's bill.

LOSS WAS ONLY $4,000

Mr. A. G. Holmes, of Council's Had Misfortune to Lose His Home.

Mr. A. G. Holmes, of Council's writes The Star that while his home was entirely destroyed by fire the past week that the loss was not as great as was first reported, being about $4,000 instead of $6,000. The home and all the furniture was burned. Mr. Holmes is a prominent citizen of Council's and has many friends in this section who have learned with regret of his misfortune.

SQUALL AT SOUTHPORT CAUSE OF EXCITEMENT.

Three Colored Men Caught and Narrowly Escape Drowning.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Southport, July 2.—Yesterday afternoon, about four o'clock, a wind squall developed in this vicinity which lashed the waters in this harbor into unusual fury. The wind blew from the Southwest, and with the tide at the last of the ebb, there was the combination for a heavy sea, the wind catching the tops of the waves as they broke and whirling great sheets of water across the surface. The storm lasted about thirty minutes.

Three colored men, John and Fred Moore and Abe Gibbs, who had been fishing in the "bay," and were running home in their sailboat, were caught in the squall, and their boat overturned, the men scrambling to the boat's keel, where they clung, the boat drifting rapidly down the channel on the ebb tide, while the wind blew the waves in great volume over them.

In the storm of darkness, wind and rain, t was difficult to distinguish just what the plight of the men might be, from the shore, where many watched what appeared to be three men standing half-submerged in the water, drifting down the channel, for the boat was covered with water.

Before the sailboat rolled over, Bro. and Chris Danielson, fishermen well known for their daring, had started in their motor boat L. J. Pepper. There was great danger in this attempt, for the waves were strong, the wind high. Before the Danielsons had fairly started, the sailboat had capsized, and when the rescuers reached the men on the overturned sailboat it was difficult to take them off, but this after several turns, was successfully effected, and the men's boat taken in tow. During this time the engine had become disarranged, and it was some minutes before it could be again started, but the wind had fallen, and the return to the dock was made without further trouble. The rescue was watched from all along the shore front, the brave Danielsons coming in for general praise for their gallant and intelligent action. Except boots and oars, the colored men escaped all damage.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH WARNS VACATIONISTS

Urges Anti-typhoid Vaccination and all Sanitary Precautions

(State Board of Health)

So great are the dangers of typhoid infection on vacation tours, camping parties and outings of every description that the State Board of Health urges anti-typhoid vaccination before leaving home. It advises this precaution against the dangers that are likely to be encountered in travel, at resorts, in camps and in every change made for the summer.

The Board stresses also the importance of knowing the health and sanitary conditions of any resort or summering place you contemplate visiting before making definite plans. The presence of flies in the dining room, mosquitoes in the sleeping apartments or unscreened doors or windows anywhere in the house, should make you go elsewhere. Either the lack of, or an insanitary means of, sewage disposal should be strictly decided against. The milk and food supply should be known to be clean and free from fly infection, and the water supply should be known to be unpolluted. But even then there are uncontrollable chances of typhoid infection and the only perfect safeguard is anti-typhoid vaccine. The State Board of Health recommends it to all vacationists.

Especially necessary are these precautions for picnic occasions and camping parties. Here are encountered especial dangers that are difficult to control as a pure water supply, the presence of flies and the disposal of sewage.

Too often it has been the case that a vacation that should have been complete with joy and pleasure is marred by disease and death. Why let so simple a thing as vaccination stand between you and a successful vacation?

Wilson, N. C., July 3.—Capt. T. W. Tilghman, of the Dennis-Simmons Lumber Company, states that the company has determined to close down their mills at Middlesex, Kenly and Jamestown. This will throw out of employment 500 men. Captain Tilghman says that the low price of lumber does not justify the running of their plants. The company owns large tracts of timber and by this means will be enabled to hold it until conditions improve.

Wilson, N. C., July 3.—Reports from every section of the county indicate a short crop of tobacco. Fields which promised good yields a month ago are now estimated at a 50 per cent crop. Intelligent farmers estmate the crop of 1915 at less than half of the crop last year. Cotton is begnning to look more promising but unless rains come quickly cotton and corn will suffer severely.

NATIONAL IDEALS, AND HOW HOME MISSIONS WILL PROMOTE THEM.
Isaiah 62:1-7.

This Scripture passage is well adapted to this subject. The passage is taken from a section in Isaiah which is dealing with National life of Israel. The subject of this section is "Redeemed Israel," which is to be a blessing to the world. So we look upon our nation. The eyes of the world are turned to the United States. The heathen nations in darkness look towards the land of liberty for the light of truth. The most essential thing for us to do is to establish the right national ideals, to become "A Redeemed Israel," that we may benefit the world.

The United States is a nation which is based upon the highest ideals of any nation. Its ideals of liberty, of truth, of civic righteousness, as well as the underlying basis of religious conviction, are the keystone of strength. The founders of this country were men of religious convictions and high ideals and they embodied in the government of our country the ideals that controlled their lives. Our national honor is as inviolable as our personal honor. Our national ideal is based on the same conviction as the highest personal ideals.

As the foundation of our national life are three great things, the home, the open Bible and the Sabbath, these three great institutions, which came to us through reformation, have been the foundation stone of our lives. To wipe anyone of them out would mean to destroy our nation at its basis.

Strange as it may seem these three institutions are in danger today, and consequently our national ideals, of which they are in part the concrete form, are in danger. The desecration of the Sabbath is striking at the root of our strength of government. A people oblivious to the demands of God in regard to His Holy Day are people in serious danger. The nation-wide indifference towards the observance of the Sabbath is a nation-wide danger.

The light regard in which the sanctity of the home is held is a symptom which indicates the presence of the dread disease, "Home Carelessness." The home is the unit on which the nation is founded, and the ideals of the home are the embryonic ideals of the nation. To conserve the ideals of our national life, we must conserve the ideals of our home.

The Bible is a book of ideals. The open Bible is a source of ideals, whether it be national ideals or personal ideals. Our nation confronts a danger in its neglect of those essentials for proper thinking. They are the basis of its existence and the guide of its conduct.

The relation of home missions to our national ideals is natural and logical. The work of home missions is at home. It is within the boundaries of the nation. The place for national ideal building is at home, it is within the boundaries of the nation. So if any agency can be definitely used for the building of national ideals the work of home missions is certainly that agency.

Its work in the city among the poorer districts is to instill principles of righteousness. Its purpose is to reclaim lives, its business is to counteract the influence of sin. Its natural effect is to raise ideals of living and inculcate higher motives and principles.

The home mission work among those who are far from the center of national activity, is a power in the establishment of national ideals. It is among those who are cut off from the intimate association of the national life. The influence of home misson work among those people is to build in them high ideals of life and so make high ideals for the nation.

Another part of the home mission work is among the foreigners who come into our land. Some of these come from nations which have no high ideals and they must be taught what to think and what to believe. Home mission work gives them broader conceptions of their own lives, and the relation of their lives to others, so in them the work of establishing national ideals is through the process of developing higher personal ideals.

It ought to be the business of the church to continually endeavor to promote higher ideals, and there is no better agent to carry on this work in the fields that the church cannot itself occupy than the agency of Home Missions.

Education can be said to be an ideal. It is the ideal of the majority of our people to prepare themselves for life so that they will be able to meet conditions more efficiently than their fathers did.

J. F. Littleton, 610 S. Sixth St., Wilmington, says: "I had a dull ache across the small of my back, and often I couldn't rest as the pain was so severe. I could hardly rest as the pain was so severe. I could hardly get down to pick up anything, and when I did, I could scarcely get up again. I couldn't control the kidney secretions and had a constant desire to pass them. Day and night this trouble bothered me, and it was wearing on my whole system. After taking a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills, I was relieved of the misery in my back. When I had finished three boxes my kidneys acted regularly and my back felt as strong as it ever did."

Lesson II.—Third Quarter, For July 11, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Kings i, 28-40. Memory Verses, 39, 40—Golden Text, I Chron. xxviii, 9—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

To get the connection let us look at the important events since last lesson. After David's return to his throne there was a rebellion under a wicked man named Sheba, the son of Bichri, but he was overthrown and slain, and a city was saved through the influence of a wise woman who may be ranked with the wise woman of Tekoa and with Jael, the wife of Heber (II Sam. xx, 1, 16, 22). In II Sam. xxii we have one of David's great songs of deliverance, which is repeated in full in Ps. xviii. In II Sam. xxiii we have some of David's last words, which we may perhaps find space to consider in connection with the record of his death in today's lesson.

But there are some things which we must notice in II Sam. xxiv, such as the story of the threshing floor of Araunah, the Jebusite, over which the Lord stayed the hand of the destroying angel, saying, "It is enough," and which David bought for fifty shekels of silver and the whole place or hill for 600 shekels of gold (II Sam. xxiv, 16, 24; I Chron. xxi, 22-25). This hill was the identical mount Moriah on which Abraham offered up Isaac and received him back from the dead in a figure, and on this hill Solomon builded the temple which David desired to build, but was not permitted to, but God gave him the plans of it and allowed him to prepare abundantly for it. See carefully these passages, I Chron. xxviii, 11, 12, 19; II Chron. iii, 1. In I Kings ii, 1-4, we have some of the last words of David, with a few of his words to Solomon, but much more fully in I Chron. xxviii and xxix, with his wonderful prayer in xxix, 10-19, which we found great pleasure in memorizing in the Bible classes not long ago. Oh, for a lesson on some of these portions teeming with the riches of His grace and glory instead of the less restful portions such as the lesson of today!

But let us notice before looking at this lesson that Moriah and the threshing floor of Araunah or Ornan, the same hill, are strongly suggestive of the great atonement of the Lord Jesus, so that the foundation of the temple was really the atonement. So also in the tabernacle of Moses every board stood on the silver which was paid as a ransom for their souls. The only foundation for an individual or for the church is the finished work of the Lord Jesus. In our lesson today David is said to be old, though he was only seventy (II Sam. v, 4; I Kings ii, 10, 11). He is said to have died in a good old age, full of days, riches and honor (I Chron. xxix. 28). Trouble seems to have followed him all the way, and now, at the very end, Adonijah, his fourth son, whom he had never displeased by even saying "Why hast thou done so?" (II Sam. iii, 2-5; I Kings i, 6), seeks the throne and has himself proclaimed king. This stirred Nathan the prophet, and he and Bathsheba, the mother of Solomon, appealed to David, with the result that Solomon was caused to ride upon King David's mule and was anointed king instead of his father. This caused great rejoicing, so that the earth rent with sound thereof and David himself said, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, who hath given one to sit on my throne this day, mine eyes even seeing it" (verses 38, 40, 48). "Then Solomon sat on the throne of the Lord as king instead of David, his father, and prospered, and all Israel obeyed him" (I Chron. xxix, 23).

No throne on earth was ever called the throne of the Lord except the throne at Jerusalem, and we are fast approaching the time when Jerusalem shall again be the throne of the Lord and all nations shall be gathered unto it, to the name of the Lord, to Jerusalem (Jer. iii, 17). The Lord had told David before Solomon was born that he should be his successor and sit on his throne (I Chron. xxii, 7-9), and so it came to pass, for in some way or other every purpose of the Lord shall be performed (Jer. li, 29). I have in mind always in this connection Ps. xxxiii, 10, 11; Isa. xiv, 24, and find great rest in such assurances. If the affections of all true believers were as fully set upon the building of the church and the bringing back of the king to set up His kingdom and we were as ready to prepare with all our might, as was David, for the temple (I Chron. xxix, 2, 3), how the mission treasuries would overflow with funds to help give the gospel to every creature, and what a great company would be heard saying, "Here am I; send me!" (Isa. vi, 8) We need to remember that God tries the heart and has pleasure in uprightness and that in His hand are power and might and that all things come of Him (I Chron. xxix, 12, 14, 17).

In the last words of David in II Sam. xxiii, 1-5, he was filled with thoughts of all that God had done for him in taking him from his flocks to be king over Israel, and how all that he had written had been given to him by the Holy Spirit. He was conscious of his failures, but rejoiced in the faithfulness of God, and in the everlasting covenant ordered in all things and sure. He ever looked onward to the Christ who would sit upon His throne and rule righteously and to the morning when He would come for Israel's redemption.

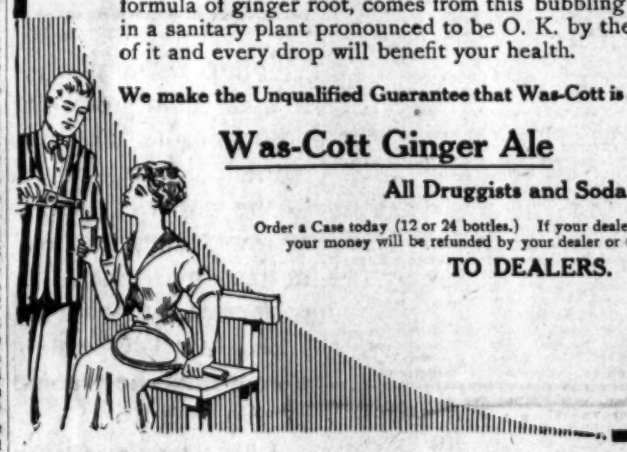
WAS-COTT Ginger Ale

It is a common saying, when referring to Ginger Ale that it is as good or not as good as "The Imported". We want to hammer home this comparison and these facts about Ginger Ale.

96 per cent of Ginger Ale is water. The reason that imported ales are considered so good is due primarily to good water, but we claim more for Was-Cott. We claim all the goodness of imported ales, of flavor and carbonating qualities—the refreshing goodness as a beverage and we claim and stand ready to back by an unqualified guarantee to refund your money if you are dissatisfied, that the Pure Was-Cott Mineral Water is infinitely better than that in most ginger ales. Make your own investigation—prove this statement, try Was-Cott.

96 per cent of Was-Cott Ginger Ale is pure mountain mineral spring water from the Was-Cott Spring in a region famous for mineral springs, where within a radius of ten miles there are springs nationally famous as health resorts and where thousands of people congregate every year to restore their health by drinking the pure mineral water. Was-Cott is one of these springs. This sparkling water, analyzing absolutely pure with the Special Was-Cott formula of ginger root, comes from this bubbling crystal mountain spring direct to your table. It is bottled in a sanitary plant pronounced to be O. K. by the Virginia Health Authorities. You can drink all you want of it and every drop will benefit your health.



We make the Unqualified Guarantee that Was-Cott is equal in flavor and carbonating qualities to the best imported ales.

THERE are Car Owners who regularly get 25% to 50% MORE Mileage, per Dollar invested in Tires, than do the Owners of other Cars driven with equal care, under equivalent road conditions.

The latter type of Owner is apt to conclude offhand (from his own experience) that all Tires must be Short-lived and Unsatisfactory.

Now this is to tell him that there is as much differences between the Mileage and Resilience of different brands of Tires, when the facts are investigated, and proven through actual Service, as there is difference between the Color of Cats—when viewed by Daylight.

This is to inform him that three Rubber Factories using precisely the same quantity and quality of Materials might, and sometimes do, produce (through the difference in their Rubber EXPERIENCE and efficiency methods) Tires of such widely different Mileage-Result as to average 3000 Miles, 4000 Miles, and 5000 Miles respectively—under parallel road conditions.

o o

COST of production is therefore no sure guide to the Mileage and Resilience which can be put into such a subtle and "temperamental" product as the Rubber in a Pneumatic Tire.

And, though The B. F. Goodrich Co. can, and does, put the most Mileage per Dollar invested by the User, into Goodrich Safety-Tread Tires, they do not interpret this as a reason why they should charge a higher price, to include an Insurance Premium which would place their "Adjustment Basis" beyond the safe and reasonable minimum that Bad Roads and Careless Driving make necessary.

GOODRICH SAFETY TREAD
Made as always,—the same reliable Construction, the same dependable Service—without anything whatever taken out of Quality, no matter what reductions in List Price are ever made.

Because of its Manufacturing Advantages, its Precision Methods, and Waste-reducing Processes (resulting from its 45 years' EXPERIENCE in the working of Rubber), The B. F. Goodrich Co. can afford to and does, offer the greatest Mileage in Tires at the lowest price per Mile.

It sells the standard grade of Goodrich Safety Tires at 10% to 30% lower prices than other non-skid brands which "Guarantee" greater Mileage but cannot prove delivery of greater Mileage in actual use.

Why pay MORE for any Tire?

HOW JOFFRE WON THE BATTLE OF THE MARNE

Details of Great Fight Just Becoming Known.

Operations Which Resulted in the Checking of German Advance on Paris Will Go Down in History as Great Feat.

Paris, June, 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The way in which General Joffre prepared for the battle of the Marne is now fully disclosed for the first time, although more than ten months have elapsed since the French and English succeeded in that battle in checking the German advance toward Paris. The victory of the Marne remains the outstanding success of the Allies' campaign thus far, and the official orders with which General Joffre directed the movement, as they now appear in the Bulletin des Armees, will form an important part in the history of the conflict. Hitherto that history has lacked detail as to the parts which each army was to play.

In addition to the formal orders, a dramatic feature of the preparations is the text of General Joffre's appeal to the devotion of the troops, which, the Bulletin des Armees says, was taken wrongly for a tactical order. It urged courage upon the soldiers to stand still and be shot rather than retire an inch in face of the German advance.

The documents now published begin with General Joffre's order of August 25, as follows:

"1. The projected offensive maneuver not having been possible of execution, the subsequent operations will be regulated so as to reconstitute on our left, by the junction of the 4th and 5th armies of the English forces and new forces taken from the region of the east, a mass capable of resuming the offensive, while the other armies will resist the efforts of the enemy during the time that may be necessary.

"The retiring movement is regulated so as to realize the following disposition of troops preparatory to the offensive:

"In the region of Amiens a new group of forces, constituted by elements transported by railroad (7th corps, 4th division of reserve and perhaps another corps of the active army) grouped from the 27th of August to the 2nd of September. This group will be ready to take the offensive in the general direction of Saint-Pol—Arras or Assas—Bapaume.'

"The same general instructions of the 22nd August fixes the zone of march of the armies and prescribes:

"The movement will be covered by the rear-guards left upon favorable ground so as to utilize all obstacles to arrest the forward march of the enemy or at least to retard him by short and violent counter attacks in which the principal element will be the artillery.'

"The object of the maneuver is thus with the beginning of August clearly fixed: it is to prepare not only an offensive action but an offensive which will be taken as soon as favorable circumstances shall arrive.

"From the 25th of August to the 4th of September the orders for retirement were executed, but the rapidity of the advance of the left wing of the enemy, the time necessary for the British army to be completed and reinforced, certain difficulties in our transports arriving from the encumbrance of railroads by the evacuations from Paris necessitated the disembarking of a part of the troops sent from the east to General Manouri more to the south than had been foreseen the 25th of August. The offensive was retarded by that fact.

"On the 4th of September the reconnaissances of our cavalry, those of the flying corps, of the British, of the Maunoury army and of the military government of Paris developed the information that the right of the German army (Von Kluck's army) deflected its advance toward the southeast (Meaux and Coulommiers) abandoning the direction of Paris.

"By this time the original army of the French left (the 5th army) was ready to face the German columns in front, and it was prolonged toward the northwest by the British army and Maunoury's army directed to the northeast of Paris.

"The disposition sought by the instructions of August 25th for the resumption of the offensive was then realized. The line escaped the projected envelopment and it was their own army that now assumed an enveloping disposition. The wings found strong support in their contact with Paris on the left and Verdun on the right. At once the general-in-chief decided to begin the attack, and on the evening of September 4th gave the following general order:

"1. The question now is to profit from the situation of the first German army to concentrate on it the efforts of the armies of the Allies on the extreme left. Two dispositions will be taken in the day of September 5th with a view to beginning the attack on the 6th.

"2. The dispositions to be realized for the 5th of September in the evening shall be:

"a. All the forces available of the 6th army to the northeast of Meaux to cross the Ourcq between Lizy-sur-Ourcq and May-en-Multien in the general direction of Chaceau-Tierry. The elements available of the 1st corps of cavalry which are in proximity shall be placed under the orders of General Maunoury for that operation.

"b. The English army shall be upon the front Changis-Coulommiers facing the east, ready to attack in the general direction of Montmirail.

"c. The 5th army, closing in slightly upon its left will establish themselves upon the general front of Courtacon-Esternay-Sezanne, ready to attack in the general direction of south to north, the second corps of cavalry maintaining the junction between the 5th army and the English army.

"d. The 9th army will cover the right of the 5th army, holding the exits to the south from the Saint-Gond marshes and directing a part of its forces upon the plateau to the north of Sezanne.

"3. The offensive shall be taken by these different armies the 6th September in the morning.

(Signed) "J. JOFFRE.'

"The following morning orders were given to the 4th and 3rd armies operating at the right of the preceding:

"'4th Army: Tomorrow morning, September 6th, the armies on our left will attack in front and in flank the first and second German armies. The 4th army, stopping its movement toward the south, will face the enemy, combining its movement with that of the 3rd army, which moving to the north of Revigny, takes the offensive in the direction of the west.

"'3rd Army: The 3rd army will move toward the west to attack the left flank of the enemy's forces who are marching to the west of the Argonne. It will combine its action to that of the 4th army which has orders to face the enemy.'

"It was on the morning of September 6th finally that the general-in-chief addressed to the armies the proclamation that has been taken wrongly for a tactical order, but which was in reality nothing but an appeal to the devotion of the troops:

"'At the moment when a battle upon which the safety of the country depends is to be engaged it is necessary for all to recall that the moment to look behind has passed. All efforts should be employed to attack and push back the enemy. Troops that can no longer advance should at any cost hold the ground gained and let themselves be killed on the spot rather than retire. Under the present circumstances no weakness can be tolerated'."

GERMAN PAINTERS ARE NOW IN THEIR ELEMENT

Grosse Berliner Kuntausstellung in Full Swing

War Pictures in the Minority While Those of Popular Military Officers and of the German Battleships in Demand.

(Correspondence of Associated Press.)

Berlin, June 20.—The "Grosse Berliner Kunstausstellung" for 1915. Germany's closest equivalent to the Paris Salon, is now in full swing, and is to be open also during July and a part of August.

Those who anticipated that this year's exhibition would be a "war exhibition" are, to a certain extent, doomed to disappointment. Not only are the number of "war paintings" comparatively few, but they are also far from being the best of the pictures on view.

Such martial—and naval—sketches as there are, are unquestionably the most popular, however, as the "Sold" tickets attached to them testify. Hardly a painting, whether of a battleship or of a well known military leader, but had been disposed of in advance of the exhibition.

When complete the exhibition will have between 500 and 600 paintings and bits of sculpture—with the former far in the numerical ascendancy. The exhibitors number about 425, most of them from Berlin. Famous Duesseldorf, the home of German artists, is represented by 35 exhibitors.

Women painters and sculptors as usual have a prominent place. There are more than 40 of them represented by canvasses or busts, and their work is among the most popular in the spacious and well-lighted exhibition building on the Lanserplatz.

The committee in charge—composed of Prof. Carl Langhammer, Fritz Burger, Ernst Freese, Willi Ter Tell, Ernst Rentsch and Prof. A. Lewinfunke, has arranged the canvasses and statues effectively and with care. They have been assisted materially by the advantages of a splendid building with almost a plethora of light, so that no picture has had to suffer from a disadvantageous position or a dark corner.

In the initial room, which is, patriotically, flanked by a three-quarter length portrait of the popular crown prince, there hang, to the right and the left, fantastic but beautiful works by Artur Hennig. They are "Spiel am Strande" and "Abend." They catch and hold the eye, and augur well for the rest of the exhibition.

Perhaps the more fantastic—certainly by far the most striking picture of the entire exhibition, hangs in this first room. It is "War" by Martin Brandenburg of Berlin, a wierd and almost ghastly conceit in which lurid colored devils with flaming red eyes and shimmering, irredescent bodies cavort before one's fascinated eyes.

Only a bit less striking but as different as day is from night, is a "portrait" by Theodore Schmuz-Maudias of Charlottenburg. It is that of a woman, clad in purple and standing in a field of green. The colors, which at first seem to clash, blend more and more harmoniously as one studies the picture. It is so hung that it is visible from five rooms, and its effectiveness is attested to by the fact that it draws attention from each one of them.

From a lay point of view, the gems of the collection in many ways are two Venetian scenes by Karl Leipold. One is of the Grand Canal, the other of Santa Maria della Salute, which hundreds, probably thousands of artists have "painted to death." Leipold, however has treated his subjects in an unusual way, and has achieved a wonderful, misty, pearl-gray, opalesque coloring for the water and the buildings in the background. No other picture in the entire exhibition has anything approaching the delicacy of coloring of these two.

Prof. Ernst Koernoer's "Sunset on the Nile near Gizeh," has a wonderful combination of yellow and reddish gold.

The best of the religious pictures is "But You Remain," by Wilhelm Pape, of Berlin. It shows the dead Christ, illuminated by a strong yellow light, lying on the bier within a greenish grotto, with dark clad figures at His head and foot.

The collection contains some charming squarelia, notably a "portrait" by Fritz Reusing of Dusseldorf, the picture of a young woman in green.

Among a number of soldier portraits there are several relatives of the artists—always with the Iron Cross—and likenesses of some of the notables that the war has brought into prominence.

In the naval canvasses, the illfated "S. M. S. Bleucher" is pictured twice, and the "Emden" as often. The former, as portrayed, is far from a sinking condition, while all about her the vessels of the enemy are going down from her well-placed shots. The Emden is in the act of sinking a British merchantman.

The soldier in almost every conceivable attitude is reproduced—from the Ulan of Christian Speyer mounted and waiting at the seaside for something that isn't apparent in the picture, to the gray-clad troops marching through the streets of Antwerp—Prof. Friedrich Klein-Checalier's "Captured Antwerp," which has been widely reproduced throughout Germany.

Many of the military and naval pictures are open to the criticism of being garish, but this is dictinctly not true of one of the best of them—"Divine service in the ruined church in Lyck, October 18, 1914," by Max Rabes. Rabes has used wonderful shades of brown to depict the service, and has produced a colorful, reverential and altogether artistic painting.

The exhibition contains the usual quota of purely local paintings—reproductions of Berlin life in the streets. By no means the least attractive of these is the tiny picture of "The Leipziger Strasse" by Otto Antoine. Though not more than nine inches squar the painting depicts faithfully the myriad colors of the famous street with surprising detail.

"Winter," by Edward Cliculel, of Munish, is one of the simplest and one of the most compelling pictures in the gallery. Against a background of snow and distant houses, a young woman in a striped fur coat is making her way along a snowy road. She is clad in garments neither too "Countrified" nor too "up-to-date" to compel attention on that score. The color seems to come and go n the cheeks of the young woman, and a warm June day in Berlin is sure to result in a slight shiver at the obvious cold in the picture. From a room full of more or less commonplace things "Winter" stands out in bold relief.

The "Grosse Berliner Kunstausstellung" was opened to the public early this month, after an official opening that was as usual a society affair. Attendance is not as yet, and it is to be hoped will not be, so great as to be stifling. A fairly steady but small stream of visitors flows through the spacious rooms to indicate that war is not the only interest uppermost in Germany at the present time.

MAKING GUNCOTTON AT DUPONT FOR UNCLE SAM

Government Adding 165,000 Pounds a Day to Store

Big Munitions Plant Near Petersburg Running Full Blast Adding to U. S. Government's Stores—Surprise Leaks Out.

Dupont City, Va., July 2.—That the United States government is adding to its stores of guncotton at the rate of 165,000 pounds a day through the big munitions plant now running in full blast at this place is a secret that has finally leaked out between here and Washington. Within a short time, five further units will be added to the four already in operation at the plant, and with these completed, the government's stores of guncotton will be increased at the rate of 725,000 pounds a day.

The total present capacity of the plant is 220,000 pounds a day, and with the five additional plant units, the output will be increased to 1,100,000 pounds daily. Of this total, it is understood that the United States government is taking three-fourths. The remaining quarter of the output presumably is going to the European Allies.

Whether the United States has intervention in Mexico in mind, or whether it is preparing for possible trouble with Germany is not known here, but the impression is that in case intervention in Mexico occurs, the government will prepare under the guise of that movement for whatever may threaten in the European situation.

There has been a bellef from the beginning that the establishment by the Duponts of a $10,000,000 powder plant in the South was done with the encouragement of the Washington government, in pursuance of the strategic policy of having munition sources at various points in case this country were attacked. Whatever the reasons, it has become plain that Virgina now has one of the largest manufactories of this kind in the world. Additional construction work in connection with the plant to occupy two years in building is mapped out, with a small army of men to be kept continually at work.

In connection with the four completed units and the construction work, 13,000 men are now employed. This force is being increased at the rate of from 500 to 1,000 a week, and by the end of the year it is expected that 25,000 or more men will be employed in the plant. A part of this force will be discontinued when construction is completed, but a working army of about 15,000 men is expected to be kept in practically continuous employment for many years. The present pay roll is close to $1,000,000 a month.

To take care of the needs of this horde of employes, 5,000 people have located on the slopes fronting the plant. Three thriving communities have grown up. The old settlement of City Point, made historic during the War between the States, has within the last few months taken on the aspects of a big municipality. Hopewell, a town less than six weeks old, is now a city with small lots selling at $4,000. Six weeks ago it was under cultivation as farming land. Dupont City, which has a pretentious location in the rolling slopes above the munitions plant, appears destined to be the residence and high class business section of the new community.

Three or four realty companies have secured small tracts of land and are selling lots. Since the 12th of June, sales have approximated $500,000 with no apparent abatement of the demand. Many of the buyers are shrewd real estate men from all over the country, who make a practice of speculating in newly developed communities, and who apparently see in the new Virginia settlement the foundation of a big and permanent city.

The lack of banking facilities has been a handicap in handling the big pay roll, but this will be remedied before the first of July. A new bank financed by a group of prominent men from Washington and New York is now being constructed at Hopewell, and two others are planned for the vicinity.

An application for an electric railway franchise from City Point into Petersburg is now pending before the city of Petersburg. This line, when built, will furnish a much needed facility, as most of the passenger traffic between Petersburg and the new settlement is now carried by a string of 125 autos, over a dusty ten-mile trip.

Try "GETS-IT," It's Magic for Corns!

New, Simple, Common-Sense Way.

You will never know how really easy it is to get rid of a corn, until you have tried "GETS-IT." Nothing like it has ever been produced. It takes less time to apply it than it does to read this. It will dumfound you, especially if you have tried everything else for corns. Two drops applied in a few seconds—that's all. The corn shrivels, then comes right off, painlessly, without fussing or trouble. If you have ever made a fat bundle out of your toe with bandages; used thick, corn-pressing cotton-rings; corn-pulling salves; corn-teasing plasters—well, you'll appreciate the difference when you use "GETS-IT." Your corn-agony will vanish. Cutting and gouging with knives, razors, files and scissors, and the danger of blood-poison are done away with. Try "GETS-IT" tonight for any corn, callus, wart or bunion. Never fails.

TELLYFONE EDDYTORIUL

Jest as we go to press with this ishue of the Boogle all is exsitement in Bingville over the roomer that a tellyfone company from the co seat is a going to bild a tellyfone line from the co seat to Hardscrabble and that this line will go through Bingvile.

There was a roomer to this same effeckt circulated about 2 yrs ago or sich a matter, but it never come to a head and we persoom that this roomer will do the same. Be that as it may however there has been considerable discusshion among some of our most respeckted cittizens down to Hen Weathersbys store & elsewhere concerning this recent roomer.

Some of out cittizens is big in for a tellyfone line and some aint. Them as is says that a tellyfone line would be a great boon to Bingville, being as a person could go to the tellyfone when it was rainin or bad wether and talk to his naber about somethink important instid of havin to go out and walk all the way to wherever his naber lived in bad wether and git all soakin wet and like as not ketch newmoyna and die. In other words, some of our cittizens thinks that a tellyfone line would be a great convenience being as then we would be in tuch with each other at all times even though we staid in the house. They also argy that in case a person was sick they could tellyfone to Doc Livermore in a minnit and thus save the life of whoever was sick like as not, instid of hikin all the way to Doc's house or offis, by whitch time the pashient would be dead like as not. Same way in the case of fire—the cheef of the Bingville Fire Dept could be tellyfoned to and the fire department could respond prompt instid of takin it a hour or two to git to the scene of the conflagrashion after whatever it was that was a fire was burnt to the ground and a total loss and likely no inshurants.

Personally we are agin a tellyfone and we dont care who knows it. The tellyfone is a new fangeld idee and we have a idee that it dont amount to mutch. We ort to be awful turrible careful about takin up new fangeld idees in Bingville too soon. A town cant be too caushious in this respeckt.

As for tellyfoning to Doc Livermore and gittin him at the suffering bedside of a pashient sooner, we calkilate that no tellyfone nor nothink else for that matter would hurry Doc a mite—we calkilate that Doc would take his time jest as he allus does tellyfone or no tellyfone.

Not only that, but from what we can lern about the tellyfone line whitch is now in operashion over to the co seat nobuddy can talk over the tellyfone there unless they desire the hull town to hear what they be talkin about, being as whenever the tellyfone bell rings everybuddy on the line drops whatever theyre doin like hot potaters and rushes to the tellyfone and lissens to hear whats goin on.

Only last wk Mrs. Eb Simpson over to the co seat was ironin when the tellyfone bell rung. Nobuddy wanted to talk to her, but she rusht to her tellyfone to hear what whoever was conversing about and left her hot iron on a gingham dress she was ironin and burnt a hole through it. Not only that but the parties who was talkin diddent talk very loud so Mrs. Eb spoke right up over the phone and says, "Please speak up a leetle mite louder if you want me to hear!"

Then theres Cyrus Higgins over to the co seat who stays to hum most of the time holdin a newspaper in one hand and a tellyfone receiver in tother. Cy thinks doin thats jest what has give him roomytiz in his arms holdin the tellyfone dingus to his ear so mutch.

For these reasons we aint in favor of a tellyfone line comin to Bingville. We have got along without sitch a thing up to now and we calkilate we can git along without it in the fuchure.

Lokal Squibs

Wes Woodruff our expert hunter & trapper perdicks that squirrels is a going to be turrible plenty this fall. Wes bases this perdickshion on the fackt that it looks to him like as if there was a going to be a big crop of nuts on the trees. In other words, no nuts, no squirrels.

Jed Peters our intelligent school teacher has been dressing hisself up within a intch of his life and driving down Snake Bend way every Satterday evg for several Satterday evks past. Whats up Jed? It is Ruth or Tildy this time?

Dad Henderson while choppin down a tree in his lot tother day chopped into a nail whitch somebuddy had drove into the tree and nicked his axe to sitch a extent that it took him three hours' solid work to grind out the nick on the grindstone. Dad says if he could jest git hold of the fiend in huming form who druv that nail into that tree he would shake em till their teeth rattled.

Cy Loomis tried to bild a fire in the kitchen stove for his wife tother morning and being as the fire peard to be turrible slow Cy thort he would hurry it along so he poured about a qt of kerosene on it whitch was follerd by a turrible exploshion whitch blowd the lids offen the stove and blowd Cy flat on his back not to say nothink of scorchin his whiskers and skeerin him nearly to deth. Cy says hereafter he'll endeavor to bild the fire without kerosene.

Used Up!

That's What Lem Hutchins Was & by His Own Wife Too---Lem Is Able to Be Up and Around at This Writin but He Got a Turrible Thrashin---It Was All a Mistake of Mistooken Identitty

Lem Hutchins met with a turrible surprise on Thursday last the memry of whitch will cluster around Lem as long as he lives we persoom. Lem was not only surprised but he was also turrible mauled by nobuddy else exseptin his wife and a person cant skeercely blame her under the circumstantces, nor Lem either for that matter. It was jest a axident as you might say all around.

As everybuddy in Bingville knows Lem Hutchins has allus wore whiskers as long as ennybuddy in these parts kin remember. Lem wore whiskers long afore he was married and he has wore em ever sinst. We understand on good otheoritty that there aint a pr of sheers ever tetched Lems whiskers sinst he 1st begin to wear whiskers until last Thursday.

On last Thursday evg about 8 p. m. Lem dropt into the shop of Harve Hines our tonsorial artist & expert barber jest to chat a while with Harve who wassent doink ennythink but sharping up his rasers.

Well, as Lem set there Harve askt him why in thunderashion he diddent shave his whiskers off. Lem told Harve he diddent shave his whiskers offen his fase becuz they kep his fase warm in winter and shaded it from the sun in summer and not only that but another reason why he diddent shave his whiskers was that it was too expensive to have shaved off and he couldnt afford it. Then Harve told Lem that being as he wassent very bizzy and that trade in the barbering line had been turrible dull of late he would shave Lems whiskers off for the ridicklus low sum of 5 cts whereas the reglar price was 10 cts but being as it was Lem and he wassent bizzy he would cut the price in haff.

Lem he himmed and hawed and dickered with Harve and after he had beat Harve down to 3 cts Lem he got into the barber chair and told Harve to go ahead whitch Harve done.

Lems whiskers was turrible long and all matted up being as we have said they aint been cut sinst time memorial as we might say and Harve found he had a awful job on his hands. First Harve cut Lems whiskers as clost as he could with the sheers, then he went to work on em with his razzer and after quite a spell he had Lems fase as clean and smooth as could be but without whiskers Lem lookt ridicklus and so mutch like somebuddy else that skeercely ennybuddy has recognized him sinst without they ask who he is of somebuddy that knows.

It was nearly 9 p. m. when Lem paid Harve the 3 cts for shaving his fase and started home. When Lem arrove at his own door the lights in the house was all out and Lem calkilated that his wife Mirandy had went to bed so Lem snuk into the house and lit the candle and clim the stairs to the upper back chamber and shure enuf there was Mirandy in bed sound asleep.

Lem thort he would crawl into bed without wakin up Mirandy and informin her that he had had his whiskers shaved off so he done so and right there is where he made a turrible mistake. Lem should of told Mirandy. Well Lem blowd out the candle and crawled in bed and went to sleep.

About 2 o'clock in the mornin Mirandy was woke up by a violent toothake so she clim outen bed and went down stairs to the kitchen to git some clove oil or somethink to put into her akin tooth and lit the lamp to see by and then when she had fixt her tooth she carried the lamp back up to the bedroom. When she went into the room she happend to take a look at Lem and she diddent know him as he layd there asleep from a side of sole leather being as she haddent nevver saw him without whiskers so she nacnerly thort he was some strange man or tramp or other in the bed who haddent no right to be there so she set down the lamp and wonderd what shed do.

Mirandy diddent holler & yell as menny a woman would of didd but then theres a reason for that—Mirandy weighs nearly 300 lbs and is as strong as a ox & aint afeard of nothin incloodin her husband nor no other man.

It diddent take Mirandy long to make up her mind. She grabd holt of Lem by the scruff of his undershirt and puld him outen the bed with one yank. Then she swung him round her head a cupple of times and crackt his heels agin the walls and slamd him down on the floor with a dull sikkening thud. Then she set rite down on top of him and begin to skratch his fase with her hands.

Poor Lem woke up outen a sound sleep and diddent know what had happend to him but he thort he was being murderd so he hollerd "Help!" and "Murder!" as loud as he could holler but Mirandy diddent pay no attenshion to him but jest kep on scratchin his fase and screechin, "Ile show you how to try and play a joke like that on me no matter who you be—you misable retch!" When she said this Lem realised that Mirandy diddent recognize him and he hollerd to her as loud as he could holler, "Fer goodness sakes lemme up, Mirandy, dear! Ime nobuddy but your luvving husband!"

Then the truth dawnd on Mirandy and she realised that it was Lem with his whiskers off, so she helpt him to his feet and told him she was sorry she had misused him so but let this be a lesson to him never agin to git his whiskers shaved off without her nolledge or consent.

Mirandy stayd up till near morning bathin Lems woonds where she had laserated him. No bones was broke and Lem was out on crutches in two days and will soon be walkin with a cane.

Harve Hines says he never cut sitch a mess of whiskers offens a mans fase for the stingy sum of 3 cts and wont nevver agin. Lem says even if the shave diddent cost him only 5 cts it was the most turrible expensive shave he ever had in his life. E. A. LOCKE.

Personal Breefs

Rev. Moore our beloved paster of the Bingville church while communing with Nachure back of his house had a wasp to sting him, and next Sunday Rev. Moore will preach from the text, "O Deth Where Is Thy Vicktry!" Rev. Moore says he skeercely ever walks out that he dont git some inspirashion or other.

Miss Molly Tucker our quire organist in the church punskshuated the services last Sunday morning with a turrible screech. It seems that mice had made a nest in the organ and during the service one of em run outen the organ rite under Miss Mollys feet.

Andy Tewksbury a former resident of Bingville who about five yrs ago moved over to Pottowassie Co., was a visitor in our midst last wk shaking hands with old friends. Andy says that Bingville has improved turrible sinst he left town. Well, as we said in these collums when Andy left without payin up his subscripshion that it was a good riddance of bad rubbish.

Jaspar Hawkins while cutting across lots in the dark to go to the P. O. tother night fell into a excavashion whitch Cy Hoskins was digging back of his house contusing his head and skinning his shin-bone whitch caused Jasp to swear considerable but otherwise he was uninjured.

Mrs. Martha Tucker done a big warshing last Monday morning and had it all out on the line by 8 a. m. but Martha had to git up and go to work at it afore 2 o'clock in the morning. Hows this for having a big warsh out on the line by 8 a. m?

Eph Higgins our accommodating P. M. says some blamed fool dropped a letter in the P. O. tother night without putting no stamp on same. Eph warns whoever done this that he wont pay the postage on this letter outen his own pocket and that if it ain't cald for by the time this notis apears in print he'll open it to see whats in it.

Miss Phoebe Hildebrand says shes been so bizzy in the fashionable dressmakin bizness lately that she aint had time to make enny clothes for herself and as a result she aint got nothink fit to wear. Well that jest the way with dressmakers & cobblers.

Abe Witherow purchased a pr of boots at Hen Weathersbys store last wk only to discover after he had wore em a few days that one boot was a No. 8 and tother was a No. 11. Abe asked Hen to exchange one boot or tother so they would be both the same size but Hen refused. Hen says that Abe ort to of discuverd that they wassent mates when he bought em and sinst he diddent now Abe has made his bed and he kin lay in it.

Get Married and DO IT NOW

I notised in last wks Bugle there was a eddytoriul advising the young folks of Bingville & vicinnity to get jined in the holy bonds of wedlock and urgin them to do so this month, being as June is the month of Brides & Roses.

I wish to state that I indorse this eddytoriul very hearty, and in order to make a inducement for them in our midst as contemplate matrimony to take this grave step at onct I hereby announce that during the month of June I will marry yung folks at the rate of $1 per cupple, whereas my reglar rate is $2 and up. This offer is good for this munth only—after the 1st of July I'll raise my marriage rates agin.

Where can you git yourself married to the partner of your joys & sorrers for the ridicklus sum of $1 I ask. If its worth ennythink a tall to be married it ort to be worth $2 or $3, and probably this chanst will nevver come to you agin. Take advantage of it now.

Please understand that in makin this offer I dont garryntee that you wont make a mistake in gittin married. Thats your own lookout, and if you've went and pickt out a mate with who you will fite like cats & dogs and make a mess of the sackred marriage tie, its your own fault. All I do is to marry you, thats all. Get married now if your ever a going to take this fatal step. Yours for marriages,

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

STOCKS RECOVERED LOSSES

Shooting of J. P. Morgan Caused Wavering for Brief Period—Strength of the Market Demonstrated.

New York, July 3.—The underlying strength of the financial situation was again demonstrated today by the manner in which the stock market withstood the attempted assassination of J. P. Morgan. For a very brief period prices wavered from 1 to 2 points, but made almost complete recovery before the close, on assurances that the financier's injuries were not serious.

News of the Morgan shooting came midway in the brief session and affected the industrial group more than other issues. United States Steel, with which the name of Morgan is closely identified, fell off 1 1-4 to 59, while American Can, many of the war specialties and motors sagged from 1 to 2 1-2. The set back was only temporary, however, supporting orders soon overcoming any threatened liquidation. Before the close most losses were reduced to minor fractions.

Trade reports were more encouraging, the last half of the year, in the opinion of the authorities affording striking contrast to the first half.

Bonds iregular with further moderate foreign sales. Total sales (par value) $1,425,000. United States bonds unchanged on call during the week.

MONDAY BIG DAY AT BURGAW.

County Commissioners, Education Board, Rangers and Others Meet.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Burgaw, N. C., July 3.—Monday, the 5th inst., will be a big day in Burgaw, notwithstanding the fact that it is a holiday. Besides the meeting of the board of county commissioners, the board of education will hold an important meeting, at which, in addition to the appointment of school committes, there will be several other matters of importance to the school work of the county to be considered.

Then the stock law and anti-stock law people will hold meetings to consider various questions in connection with the campaign, and the Pender County Duroc-Jersey Swine Breeders' Association also will have a meeting. A representative of the United States Department of Agriculture is to be here and speak to the people on the subject of cattle.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McNeal have gone to Delaware to spend a few weeks, traveling by automobile.——Mr. Jas. G. McNeal and Mrs. McNeal are here for a few weeks——Mr. A. McL. Graham and family, of Clinton, were here visiting relatives this week.——Rev. James Thomas, of Clinton, was here this week.

—Friends of Mr. J. C. Rowell, of Phoenix, will felicitate him upon his 80th birthday, which he celebrated quietly on Friday. He gave no birthday dinner as usual on account of his health, which has not been so good of late, but he is improving now and his many devoted friends throughout this section will be glad to know that he is still living and hopes to be spared for many more birthdays.

PRICE OF WHEAT WENT DOWN

Hedging on Broad Scale to Anticipate Liberal New Crop Arrivals Caused Move—Corn and Oats Lose.

Chicago, July 3.—Hedging on a somewhat broad scale to anticipate liberal new crop arrivals expected by Tuesday gave a downward swing today to the wheat market here. WEEKLY DRY GOODS REVIEW

Prices Generally Are Steady—Opinion on Fall Cotton Settled.

New York, July 3.—A more settled opinion concerning the values for cotton goods for fall distribution is apparent in the primary markets. Wide print cloths were steadier and slight advances from the low points were paid for small lots. Bleached cottons, both branded muslins and wide sheetings are steadier. Staple prints and staple ginghams are quiet for manufacturers restricted in their ability to fill orders before the scarcity of the many fast dyes. The heavier end of the colored goods markets is firmer. The distribution of fine and fancy goods for immediate sale continues steady and bids fair to continue quite full for another month. Brown goods were generally quiet. Cotton duck continues firm on grades selling largely for export. Quotations: Print cloths 28 inch 64 by 64s 3 1-8, 64 by 60s, 3 cents; 38 1-2 inch 64 by 64s 4 cents; brown sheetings, Southern standards, 6 1-4, denims, 9 ounce 13 1-4, tickings 8 ounce 13 1-2, standard prints 5 1-4, standard staple ginghams 6 1-4c; dress ginghams 9 1-4c.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET

Liverpool, July 3.—Cotton: Spot in fair demand, prices steady, good middling 5.54; middling 5.24; low midding 4.78. Sales 8,000 bales, including 6,800 American and 1,000 for speculation and export. Receipts 3,000. Futures closed quiet and steady. July 5.13; July and August 5.13; August and September 5.22; September and October 5.29 1-2; October and November 5.36; November and December 5.40 1-2; December and January 5.44 1-2; January and February 5.48 1-2; February and March 5.52 1-2; March and April 5.56 1-2; April and May 5.5 91-2; May and June 5.62 1-2; June and July 6.56 1-2; July and August 5.68 1-2.

NEW YORK PROVISION MARKET.

SILVER MEDAL GOES TO PRIVATE DONALD

Rescued Drowning Woman at Fort Caswell.

Secretary McAdoo Recognizes Gallant Conduct of Private in Coast Artillery Corps — Ferguson Resigns.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Washington, D. C., July 3.—Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo has awarded a silver medal of honor to Private William E. Donald, 31st company, Coast Artillery Corps, in recognition of his gallant conduct in rescuing a woman from drowning at Fort Caswell, December 7, 1914.

A negro woman employed at the army post fell from a dock and was being rapidly carried out by the tide when Private Donald dived overboard in the darkness and swam through the icy water to her assistance. By the time he succeeded in bringing the unconscious woman into shallow water, he was in an exhausted condition from his efforts.

Captain W. B. Ferguson, of Hendersonville, who graduated from the Naval Academy in 1900 and since that time has devoted his time and talent to the navy as naval constructor, is one of the naval officers who desires to resign to accept other employment, presumably to build ships for a private concern. Pending a decision by the Attorney General, Secretary Daniels is refusing to accept his resignation.

Captain Ferguson is considered one of the best naval constructors in the navy. In order to become a naval constructor one must not be lower than third in his graduating class. Ferguson contends that he has already given 15 years of his life to the Navy. He is now offered a better place by a private corporation than any one could hope to get if he was given the highest appointment in the naval service.

The decision of the Attorney General and Mr. Daniels will be watched with interest. P. R. A.

representative of the United States.

Address of acceptance of the monument on behalf of the Guilford Battle Ground Company, Congressman Charles M. Stedman, a director of the company.

At the conclusion of the addresses the procession was reformed, and led by the band and chorus marched through double lines of troops to the Greene Memorial Monument. At the head of the procession were Capt. Howard B. Allen and Capt. William M. Owen, of the Varnum Continentals, a military organization of East Greenwich, Rhode Island, which was the home town of General Greene, and of which organization General Greene was a charter member.

The troops then passed in review and drew up at "Present arms." The "Star Spangled Banner" was rendered by the chorus and band. A dedicatory prayer was offered by Bishop Edward Rondthaelor, of the Moravian church. The monument was unveiled by Mrs. Anna Clarke Meador, of Providence, R. I., a lineal descendant of General Nathaniel Greene.

At the conclusion of the formal exercises an informal luncheon was served on the grounds by the Guilford Battle Ground Company. Among the speakers following this luncheon were President E. K. Graham, of the State University; Hon. John M. Morehead, of Charlotte, ex-congressman, who introduced the bill in Congress for the appropriation for the monument; Hon. Charles R. Thomas, ex-congressman, of Newbern; Dr. C. Alphonso Smith, of the University of Virginia, a native of Greensboro and author of the inscription on the monument; Mr. R. D. W. Connor, secretary of the North Carolina Historical Commission; Col. James T. Morehead, of Greensboro; Hon. Julian S. Carr, of Durham, Hon. A. M. Scales, of Greensboro; Hon. George Bryan, of Richmond, Va.; Gen. B. S. Royster, of Oxford.

In the afternoon there was an exhibition drill by the Federal and State troops in attendance.

The bill appropriating the funds for the monument was passed by Congress in 1911, and carried an appropriation of $36,000. The sculptor is Mr. F. H. Packer, of New York. The architect was Albert Randolph Ross, of New York City. The monument is said by the National Fine Arts Commission to be one of the finest in the country, and is not surpassed by any in artistic merit. It has a magnificently designed base and the equestrian statue of General Greene is said to be very realistic.

at El Paso by agents of the Department of Justice, it became known tonight, to prevent the possibility that he might follow the footsteps of Pascual Orozco, who apparently has forfeited his bond in escaping the espionage of the Federal agents.

The War Department had authorized General Funston to imprison General Huerta at Fort Bliss if the former dictator were re-arrested today.

Officials here were much disappointed when Huerta was promptly released on bond when first arrested. The belief prevailed tonight, although officials at the Department of Justice would not admit it, that the new bond had been made so high as to be practically prohibitive.

The position of the Washington government is that Huerta's return to Mexico would complicate the situation with a new revolutionary movement at a time when President Wilson is working out plans for a pacification of the country through the factions already in the field.

General Carranza, through Elizo Arredondo, his representative here, has asked for the extradition of General Huerta and other prominent Mexicans, but it was indicated tonight in official quarters that no action would be taken on this application or on the one received from the Villa governor of the state of Chihuahua.

Conditions in Mexico City are still critical, according to such meagre advices as have been received.

NUMBER PRESIDENT'S GUARDS IS INCREASED

Precautions Taken After Attack on Morgan.

No Fear Is Felt But Extra Alertness Was Considered Best—The President Expects to Spend a Quiet Fourth.

Cornish, N. H., July 3.—Extra precautions were taken by secret service men today to guard President Wilson. The attack upon J. P. Morgan and the explosion of a bomb in the Capitol in Washington served to make the President's guards particularly alert.

Eight secret service men are now on duty here and another is on his way to join them. While no particular fear is felt that an attack on the President might be attempted, it was thought best to take every possible precaution.

President Wilson heard with regret of the shooting of J. P. Morgan and of the bomb explosion in the Capitol. He has known Mr. Morgan for some time and expressed pleasure tonight when told that attending physicians had said the financier's wounds were not expected to prove serious.

The President plans to spend Independence Day very quietly.

Are You Going to Take the children to Lumina tomorrow? Every convenience at Lumina for family parties. Delightful music. Dancing, pictures. (advertisement.)
